Lovely New Silks and Dress Goods

Our stock of fall Dress Goods and Silks is now completed, and never before have we shown such a beautiful range, representing as it does the choicest weaves and the most exquisite designs of the best manufacturers on the other side of the water. Our buyer was in every centre of any importance, and picked the best pieces that he thought would appeal to the Napanee people. The large demand that we have had plainly tells that he was successful in his efforts. Ask to see some of the latest materials. Priestley's goods lead in this house. We are sole agents for this celebrated firm in Napanee—50c to $3.00 per yard.

Pretty Tweed mixtures, plain cloth and plaids, 40 and 44 inches wide, 50c yard. Wider and better materials in similar designs, 75c yard.

The Madill $1.00 Dress Goods is known far and wide—in this price we strive to lead, and we do in Broadcloths, Panamas, Cheviots, Venetions, wide rib Poplins, Serges, Ottoman Cords and Melrose Suitings, Rosettas, Mohairs, Moheldies, Savoy, Poplins, Taffetas, Cashmeres, Serges for Dresses in every shade $1.00 yard, and in every design of novelty Dress Fabrics, Chiffon, Broadcloths, Serges, Panamas, Cheviots, Serges, Venetions, etc., $1.25 to $3.00 per yard.

Perfect satisfaction guaranteed in our Dressmaking Department. Miss Mathers, who is in charge, is a competent Cutter and Designer. Book order at Dress Goods Department.

New Fall Laces.

Our stock of Fall Laces never was better. We have them in all the latest effects and ideas. Laces this fall are more than ever popular for Dress Trimmings, and our buyer, with usual good forethought, purchased accordingly, so we have Laces suitable for every occasion. Laces, 9 insertion, 15c to $3.00 yard. Allover Laces, 50c to $4.00 yard.

J. L. BOYES,

PARISH OF CAMDEN.

The Rector Rev. Elwin Radcliffe was tendered a splendid farewell at Hinch's Hall, Camden East by the three congregations of Camden East, Yarker and Newburgh, on Tuesday, October 1st, at 7.30 p.m. Mr. Riley, of Camden East, was called to the chair, when a nice programme consisting of songs, duets, etc., was rendered, to which Mrs. C. H. Finkle, Miss Helen Finkle, and Evelyn Beaman, most kindly and ably contributed. Then Mr. B. S. O'Loughlin, for twenty-five years delegate for St Anthony's, Yarker, was called upon for a speech, which he made in his usually happy manner, and then he read an address to Mr. Radcliffe couched in the following language: Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe, B. C. L., Rector of the Parish of Camden.

REVEREND AND DEAR SIR,— It is with feelings of sincere regret that we have learned of your decision to sever your connection with us and the Diocese of Ontario. During the five years you have laboured amongst us we have ever found you a faithful priest, responding promptly to the call of duty, and never sparing yourself in your efforts to extend Christ's Holy Church among men. We trust the influence you have exerted and the seed you have sown may continue its leavening influence and spur us to greater efforts for the welfare and advancement of the church. While duly cognizant of our loss we would embrace the opportunity of congratulating the Diocese of Rupertsland on securing the services of a Priest who will inspire his people with zeal in the Master's cause. We feel morally certain you will entirely fulfil the expectations entertained of you and will accomplish a noble and grand work in that portion of God's vineyard wherein you are now called to labour. We desire to embrace this

FURS

A vast winter stock at its zenith. There's advantage in sharing first choice of the season's styles. Makers at the beginning of the season "put the best foot forward" so to speak, do their utmost in value and effort to win re-orders. So all through the big stock of both Coats, Muffs, Fur Throw Ties, and Stoles, you'll note values that are remarkable. We spread the rich feast and trust to your judgment. Our Stoles and Throw Ties consist of first quality Mink, Natural Sable, Lynx, Bear, Coon, German Otter, and German Mink, Thibet, etc., with Muffs to match in cushion and barrel shapes, at all prices. We ask comparison.

Ladies' Fur Coats and fur lined is a specialty with us, showing the largest range in the district of Persian Lamb, Seal, Astrachan, with trimmings of Mink, Squirrel, Sable, etc. Newest style and Linings the best. (The Madill guarantee goes with every garment.)

Fur Lined Coats in great variety, best quality of River Mink or Musk Rat Linings, and Collars and Lapels of Mink, Persian Lamb or Sable, Black Blue or Green Shells. We defy competition in this line of the business.

Camden East, Oct. 1st.

A purse of gold $70.00 was then handed to Mr. Radcliffe and a Private Communion Set will be presented before his departure for Brandon Friday morning, Oct. 4th.

Mr. Radcliffe rose and thanked the large audience present for their splendid gifts and kindness to him while in the Parish, placing him under a debt of gratitude to them which he never could repay and concluded by invoking God's blessings, spiritual and temporal upon them.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the united congregations and a most enjoyable evening came to a conclusion by votes of thanks to the ladies, gentlemen, chairman and all who took part and made Mr. Radcliffe's farewell the splendid success it was.

MY DEAR PARISHIENEERS, AT CAMDEN EAST, YARKER AND NEWBURGH—

Permit me by open letter to thank you all for your sympathy with me in my work in the Parish, and for your splendid liberality and kindness to me when taking my departure for Brandon, and for the enjoyable evening and farewell you gave me at Hinch's Hall. I tender my best thanks to the wardens at Camden East, Messrs. Robinson and Riley. Mr. John Robinson for many personal acts of kindness which it is outside of my power to repay in any manner, shape or form to Messrs. Baxter and Ewart, of Yarker, and to Messrs. Sutton and Shorey, of Newburgh. There are many names in the three Parishes I would also like to mention but space does not permit. To one and all who have helped so willingly and well in church work, I tender my warmest thanks. Packing up and attending to the sick must be my plea for not having visited all the families in the Parish to say farewell. I shall remember you all in my prayers, as I trust to be remembered by you all.

Believe me

Very sincerely your friend and Rector,

C. E. S. RADCLIFFE.

The Rectory, Camden East, Ont, Oct. 2nd, 1907.

FAREWELL DINNER.

The Clergy of the Rural Deanery of Lennox and Addington, took dinner together at the Paisley House, Napanee, on Monday, Sept. 30th, for the purpose of bidding farewell to Rev. C. E. S. Radcliffe on the eve of his departure to his new field at Brandon, Man. Sincere regrets were expressed by his brethren at his removal from their midst, and cordial good wishes for God's Blessing upon him in his new sphere.

Amherst Island Fair.

Amherst Island Annual Agricultural Fair was held at Stella, on Thursday, the 26th day of September. Fortune favoured the exhibitors with a fine day, and the residents of the island turned out en masse, besides the usual large attendance from Bath and ports along the bay. They were also favoured with a visit from their popular member in the Commons, Mr. Urish Wilson, who looked well and hearty, and as if he was quite fit for another election campaign.

The English Church party provided the lunch for the judges and other attending the Fair, in the Victoria Hall, which would satisfy anyone no matter how fastidious his tastes. The long tables arranged up and down the length of the hall were well laden with choice eatables, and ample justice was done to the good things provided. The proceeds of the lunch were devoted to assist in paying off the debt on the new rectory building.

There was a good exhibit of live stock, and more pedigreed animals exhibited than formerly. Owing to the dryness of the season the stock may not have appeared in the best condition, especially the cattle, which looked as if a good pasture would have improved their appearance. There were very good roots, and the grain plumper than last year.

In the ladies' department there was a fine display of their work.

A list of sports after the judging was thorough was very much needed and a hint should suffice to have it remembered before another season comes around. If not allowed to speed horses still something might be provided in the way of foot races, jumping, etc.

There is a fine opportunity afforded at the fair for the purchase of horses, and every year this custom is becoming more common as no less than four horses were sold this year to purchasers from across the bay.

DARE HE?

OR, A SAD LIFE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV.

One would have thought that Jim had been in some measure prepared for the just-fallen blow, both by the overheard fragments of Mr. Greenock's conversation with the Devonshire clergyman at Florence last year; by the accumulated evidence of there being some blight upon Elizabeth's life; and, lastly and chiefly, by the ravings of Byng. But there is something so different from all these, so infinitely more dreadful, in hearing this naked statement from her own lips, that it stuns him as much as if he had never received any hint of that ruinous secret in the background of her life.

Having now uttered it, she stops, either to pick up her own spent strength or to give him the opportunity for some question or comment.

He makes neither. "I thought—I hoped—that you had guessed, from what Mr. Byng said, I believed that when he was not himself—"

Again she breaks off, but still no sound comes from Jim.

"You understand, of course, that that was what I told him. I wanted to tell him the rest, but that time he could not hear it, and the last time he—he—did not care to hear it."

His continued muteness must daunt her, for she here makes a longer pause than before. Indeed, it is only the fear lest she should mean it for a final one that enables him to force out the two husky monosyllables:

"Go on."

She is always most obedient, and she now obeys.

"He came only two days after you left us, that was why the sight of you was so—so painful to us at first. It was not your fault, but we could not help mixing you up with him. You remember how we tried to avoid you—how discourteous we were? You forgave us afterwards, but you must have observed it."

The listener makes a slight motion of assent.

"He was a Hungarian, and had been recommended to father by Sir—, who, as you know, is always so extraordinarily kind to struggling artists, and who thought highly of his talent, and wished to get him commissions. He was almost starving in London; that was one great reason, I think, why father employed him."

Even at this moment the thought darts across Jim's mind that he has never known Elizabeth miss an opportunity of implying some praise of that father whose harshness toward herself he has so often had an opportunity of witnessing.

"He was quite young—not more than twenty-three—and he looked very ill when he first came; indeed, he was really half starved. It has always been the worst passport to mammy's heart to be poor and sick and down in the world, and nothing could have been kinder than they both were to him."

"And well he repaid their kindness," says Jim, indignation at last giving him words.

She puts out her hand, as if to stop him.

"Wait, wait!" she says, almost authoritatively; "do not abuse him. He seemed very grateful to them, and they all—we all—became quite fond of him. When he grew stronger, he turned out to be very lively and light-hearted—almost as light-hearted as we."

"That journey! I did not know that it was the end of my life. We both set off laughing and saying to each other what a good joke it was. That was at the beginning, but long and long before we reached London—it was not till very late that we did so—I would have given all the world to go back. I did not tell him so because I thought it would hurt him, but I have often thought since that perhaps he was feeling the same."

Again that touch of almost tender ruth in her voice makes her auditor writhe.

"We went to an hotel. I think it must have been in some very out-of-the-way part of the town, probably the only one he knew of, and at first they would not take us in because we had no luggage; but they consented at last. I heard him telling the landlady that I was his sister. I suppose she did not believe it as she looked very oddly at me. I did not understand why she should; but it made me feel very wretched—so wretched that I could scarcely swallow a mouthful of the supper he ordered. I do not think that he had much more appetite than I; but we tried very hard to laugh and keep up each other's spirits. They gave me a very dismal bedroom—I can see it now—shuddering—and as I had no change of clothes I lay all night outside my bed. It took a great deal to keep me awake in those days, and, wretched as I was, I slept a good deal. The next morning I awoke, feeling more cheerful. We should be married in the forenoon, return home in the afternoon, to spring our surprise upon the children and Fraulien, and be ready to receive and be pardoned by father and mother on their return to-morrow. It had not occurred to either of us that there would be the slightest difficulty in pursuing this course. We had decided upon at once inquiring the name and address of the clergyman in whose parish the hotel was—going together to ask for an interview, and beg him to marry us at once. We had a vague idea that a license might be needed, but relied upon the clergyman also to inform us where that might be got. In one respect our plans had to be at once modified. When I came down I found that there was such a dense fog that he would not hear of my venturing out into it, particularly, he said, as my staying behind would entail no delay; since, when he had obtained the license and engaged the clergyman, he would, of course, at once come back to fetch me to church. I gave in, though I had rather have gone with him and fought my way through the fog and stayed behind, alone in that dreary sitting-room. I was there nearly all day by myself until late in the afternoon. The fog was so thick that I could not see a finger's length beyond the window, nor even across the room. I had neither book nor work. I had nothing to do but walk up and down by the flickering light of the bad gas, which was burning all day, and look at a wretched little ead aucuba in a pot. Sometimes I went out on the landing to see if there were any signs of his return. I had done this for the fiftieth time, when at last I saw him through the gas and the fog, coming up the staircase. I could not wait till he had reached me, but called out over the banisters, 'Well? Well?' His only answer was a sort of sign to me to go back into the room; but I did not understand it at first. Not until I saw coming up the stairs too, a little behind him, the face of—that clergyman you saw at Cortosa—our clergyman have never brought good-luck to any one that had to do with me!"

She is crying quietly now. Is it her tale or her tears that have softened Jim's heart? He no longer grudges her that tribute to the lover of her youth.

"For the first few days after I came home I did not feel anything at all, and I saw nobody but mammy. At the end of a week she came to me, and told me that I must pull myself together, for that my father wished me to go with him to an agricultural meeting at Exeter, which we were always in the habit of attending. She said that there were reports about me in the county, which nothing but my appearing in public would contradict. She said she knew how hard it was for me, but that she knew, too, that I would try to make the effort for their sakes. For their sakes!"—in a heart-wringing voice—"was not it the least I could do, for their sakes? I got up; my legs felt as if they did not belong to me. She dressed me herself—darling mammy!—and she tied on my veil, and—put some rouge on my cheeks! Think of mammy rouging anyone! If you remember, we had some charades while you were with us, and had bought some rouge for them. And then she took me down to father, and we went—he and I."

Her breath has grown shorter, and her narrative more disjointed; but she perseveres. Is not she near the end?

"We went—and we walked about among the short-thorns—and the prize poultry—and the tents—father and I—and we met a great many people whom we knew—the whole county was there, but we were too late. Our rector had been before us with them—and not one of them would speak to me! And then we went home. Oh, poor father!"

She has covered her face with her transparent hands. The emotion that she would not permit herself for herself has mastered her at the recollection of that father's abasement and agony.

"He was quite right—it was quite natural that he should not allow me to live at home, after that. He said I must not blight the children's lives—must not stand in the light of the others. So I was sent away to live with some old friends of mammy's—two kind old ladies—with whom she had been at school; and they were very good to me, and I lived with them until, as Miriam and Rose were married, father thought I could not do anyone any more harm, and he let me come home again. There! that is all!"

She stops, her tale ended, sighing with the inexpressible relief of that lifted load. Speech from him now would be no interruption—would be kindly, rather, and welcome. Yet he still stares blankly before him. Why has she told him that painful tale? Is it that he may carry a more lenient judgment of her through the rest of his life—that life to be finally severed from hers? Or is it with some hope that that told tale may keep him forever beside her? She does not love him. She loves Byng. But, as he has often told himself, she is not of the stuff of which great constancies are made. And, since Byng has forsaken her, whom has this plant creature, that nature made so clinging and circumstances so lonely, left to throw her tendrils round except him? She does not love him, and yet in the depth of his heart he knows that, if he wished it, he could make her love him. Shall he wish it? Shall he stay—stay to have those exquisite eyes, tear-washed, and yet laughing, watching for his slightest wish; that tripping step keeping-time to his up the hills and through the valleys of life; that delicate sympathy, soaring with his highest thoughts, and yet playing with his slightest fancies? Shall he?

Elizabeth is looking down upon the aspidodels, stooping to stroke, as if it were a sentient thing, a great plummy plant, like a sort of glorified fennel, out of whose dithery breast a puissant flower rises, from which an unfamiliar shower is pushing. What a fascination there is in this alien vegetation, in which every shut calyx holds a delightful secret!

Shall he? For himself, he believes her story implicitly, feeling, indeed, with a shock of mixed surprise and remorse,

NEWS BY MAIL ABOUT JOHN BILL AND HIS PEOPLE.

Occurrences in the Land That Reigns Supreme in the Commercial World.

Through treading on a rusty nail some weeks ago, Mrs. E. Fawcass, of Sunderland, has just died from lock-jaw.

Lord Aberdeen was at Bow Street Police Court, fined £2 for exceeding the ten mile an hour limit on his motor car in St. James' Park.

The Isle of Man did not become a part of the United Kingdom until 1829, when the sovereign rights of the Deroy family were purchased for £400,000.

The British Government has decided to donate $730,000 for the rebuilding of Kingston, Jamaica, and the people of England have further subscribed $243,000.

Mr. Thomas Lister, postman, of Malton, who has retired after forty years' service, was the first postman to wear uniform, as when he joined no uniforms were provided.

Mr. Carnegie's gift of £100,000 to King Edward's Hospital Fund is notable as the first recorded recognition by Mr. Carnegie of the work that is being done by hospitals.

"Keep quiet," said the Marylebone, London, Police Court jailer to an old Scotch woman, accused of begging. "Ah, yes," replied the lady, "it's a still tongue mak's a wise head."

The decision which the British Board of Trade is said to have reached to stop the duplication of names by the owners of ships is a wise one and aims to lessen a growing evil.

The Rev. Thomas Lord, who is in his 100th year, and is the oldest Congregational minister in England, continues to take preaching engagements in different parts of the country.

A remarkable accident occurred at Harlesden, a woman being knocked down and trampled on, and her leg broken, in a rush to be the first at a big driver's sale.

Lord Roseberry inaugurated and presented to the village of Cheddington, Bucks, a complete water system, which has cost £2,000, as a memorial to the late Lady Roseberry.

The report of the Government inspector appointed to inquire into the Isle of Wight bee disease recommends that the bees should be wintered upon stores containing an admixture of beef extract.

Known as the Cardiff working man's banker, George Matthews, who had conducted the East Spott Financial Association, was at Cardiff Quarter Sessions found guilty of extensive frauds.

In the savings bank established by the North-Eastern Railway Company for their employees, the annual report shows a sum of £354,662 standing to the credit of the 10,532 depositors, giving an average of £31 each.

An electric tramway car in Birmingham collided with a wagonette containing ten old women, who were being driven from the Linch's Trust almshouses. All were thrown out, and two, each aged seventy-four, were seriously injured.

An inquest was held recently at Islington on Manning John Lumbers, a policeman, who fell from his bicycle. The pipe which he was smoking was forced through his palate, pierced the base of the skull, and lodged in the brain. A verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

Five people had a remarkable escape from death in a motor smash on the Brighton road. The car dashed through a hedge and dropped into a stone quarry.

Since January 1st the Royal National Lifeboat Institution has voted rewards for saving 814 lives, and the lifeboats have been launched to the aid of vessels in distress on no less than 200 occasions.

She puts out her hand, as if to stop him.

"Wait, wait!" she says, almost authoritatively; "do not abuse him. He seemed very grateful to them, and they all—we all—became quite fond of him. When he grew stronger, he turned out to be very lively and light-hearted—at most as light-hearted as we."

She pauses, pulled up by a deep sigh, at the reminiscence of that young gaiety, then hurries on, as if afraid of his again breaking in upon her narrative with some scathing ejaculation.

"Before three weeks were over—you know how cheerful and easy-going we were—he was quite one of us—quite as intimate as you were."

Jim stirs uneasily, galled by the comparison.

"He was a long time painting my picture—could not satisfy himself with the likeness—and began it over again several times. At first there was always someone in the room with us when I sat to him, but by and-by, as he became more and more one of us—as his presence among us grew to be a matter of course—we were allowed often to be tete-a-tete."

She stops to let pass two Frenchmen and a Frenchwoman of the petit bourgeois class who are sauntering homewards, flanked about by two little cheerful currs, and with armfuls of hawthorn—yes, real English hawthorn—in their embrace. They look inquisitively, but not rudely, at the pale couple, and now they are out of sight.

"It was a very fine autumn, as you may remember, and we used to go out sketching together. He was supposed to give us sketching lessons—the children and me. The governess was by way of always being there, but she was a sentimental creature, generally straying away by herself with a poetry-book, and we were virtually alone."

Jim sees how interestingly, how horribly difficult of relation is the tale as it nears its catastrophe; but he is quite incapable of helping her.

"We fell in love with one another"—almost brusquely—"and he asked me to marry him. What did his miserable poverty matter to us? He knew almost as little of the practical business of life as I, and he was full of hope and ambition. He was convinced that he had a future before him. Perhaps he had. Who knows?"

There is mixed with the hurry and shame and anguish of her tone such a gleam of earnest regretful compassion as she trembles as these last words, that flits, jealous wrath awakes. Does she, then, love him still? In her heart how many is there lodging at once? For Byng? For this unknown? For how many more?

"Even he, high-blow as he was, knew that it was impossible that father could permit our marriage. He asked his consent; but as he failed to convince me of this, that if the thing were done, and inevitable, father would soon find out as he did, no, you know, he did do, on me, poor father! he would soon figure out and I, after awhile—oh! it was after awhile, do not think it was at once—with a pious effort to minimize the severity of her silent judge—"and I have always all my life been terribly, terribly persuaded—I gave in."

Far away a dull cloud, rain-charged, is settling over the Kahyle mountains, reddening out their toothed ridge. Can she hold out till the end? She has not reached the worst yet.

"We were soon given an opportunity. Father and mother went away for a couple of nights, on a visit, and left us under the maternal chaperonage of a dear old aunt of mother's, and of the governess, who, as I have told you, was worse than useless. You know that our railway-station was not more than a mile from the lodge gates; we had, therefore, no difficulty in slipping away from the others while we were all out walking, making our way there, and getting into the little branch-line train which caught the London express at Epsom."

She has repeatedly put up her hand, grief and passion over her brow, but it is useless. The cold sweat breaks out afresh and afresh.

him through the gas and the fog, coming up the staircase. I could not wait till he had reached me, but called out over the bannisters, 'Well! Well!' His only answer was a sort of sign to me to go back into the room; but I did not understand it at first. Not until I saw coming up the stairs too, a little behind him, the face of—that clergyman you saw at Certosa—our clergyman whom we used to make fun of. Oh, why did we?"

She breaks off, with a low moan, but at once resumes as if she could not trust herself to pause:

"As soon as I caught sight of him I ran back; but it was too late. I knew that he had recognized me. I do not, to this day, understand how he came to be in that out-of-the-way place; whether it was a most unfortunate coincidence, or whether he had seen us in the train or at Paddington, and tracked us there. I ran back, as I have said, into the room; but I did not really mind much his having seen me; it would all be explained so soon, and I was too much taken up with the bitter disappointment in store for me to give him more than a passing thought. Of course, you will understand that it was not in the power of any clergyman to marry us, as neither of us had lived in the parish for the requisite time beforehand, nor could we be married at a registry office, as our names had not been entered in the registrar's book for the legal time. I think I should have broken down altogether when I heard this if I had not had to comfort him. He was so overwhelmed with the fear that I should think it was his fault—that he had not done his best. Heaven knows I had no such hard thought of him! Although we consulted together all that evening, and till late into the night, we could not hit upon any expedient. He had been told vaguely that the Scotch marriage law differed from the English, and that in Edinburgh we might be married at once. But we had not enough money to take us there. Our whole stock would only just buy an ordinary license, keep us one day more at the hotel, and take us home third-class. What should we do? We did not even try to laugh that evening—that last evening!"

In her voice is the same echo of some pitying sorrow that had before offended him; but his interest is now too strung up for him to notice it:

"I did not once close my eyes that night, and when I came down next morning I had made up my mind to beg him to let me go home and ask father to make everything right. I had such confidence that father could set everything right. When I came into the sitting-room he was not there. I waited for him, and after a while the breakfast was brought up; but still he did not come. I waited on. It seemed to me that, at such a crisis, when we were both so miserable, he should be able to out-sleep himself. I am afraid—with an accent of most regretful remorse—"that I did think hardly of him then. I looked at the clock; I had been down an hour. I rang for the waiter, and asked him to go and tell the gentleman this. He was so long in coming back that I lost patience, and went out into the passage. I saw a little group of people gathered round a door some way down it. They seemed to be whispering and speaking excitedly, and one chambermaid was crying. In an instant I was among them, through them, in the room. It was his bedroom. He was lying half on half off the bed. He had evidently not undressed all night, and had taken off nothing but his coat. Before they could stop me—I believe that they humanely tried—I had caught a glimpse of his face, and had heard someone, as if at a great distance off, pronounce the word 'dead.' Then everything went away. I believe I crashed down like a log, as Mr. Byng did. When next I came to myself, mamma was leaning over me. The people in the hotel had found a letter in my pocket, with my address, and had telegraphed for her and father. They took me home. I do not remember anything about that, but so I was told afterwards, as I was also told that he had died of deep-seated heart-disease, aggravated by his anxiety about me, I plant, like a sort of glorified fennel, out of whose lathery breast a puissant sheath rises, from which an unfamiliar flower is pushing. What a fascination there is in this alien vegetation, in which every shut calyx holds a delightful secret!

Shall he? For himself, he believes her story implicitly, feeling, indeed, with a shock of mixed surprise and remorse, what a past want of faith in her is evidenced by his unspeakable relief at its being no worse a one. But who else will believe it? And the more penetratingly sweet, the more poignantly dear she is to him, the sharper to him will be the agony of the eye averted from her, the suspicious whisper, or the contemptuous smile. Is his heart stout enough, is his courage high enough, to support and uphold her through her life's long contumely? Dares he undertake that hard task? Dares he?

Elizabeth is never one apt to take offence, or she might resent his delay in making any observation on her ended story. Probably she divines that whatever may be the cause of his slowness, it is certainly not want of emotion.

At length his tardy speech makes itself heard.

"I do not know how—I have not words strong enough with which to thank you for telling me."

"I did not want my friend to go away thinking more hardly of me than he need," she answers with a poor, small smile.

This is one of the bitterest cups to which her lips have ever been set in the course of her sad history.

His next sentence is almost inaudible. "I could not well think much better of you than I have done all along."

He knows, without seeing it, that her trembling hand makes a half-motion to go out to him at those kind-sounding words, but it is drawn back again before the action has passed much beyond the stage of a project.

The wind has fallen. With how almost disagreeable a strength does the sharp and pungent smell of the innumerable asphodels assail the nostril. The light grows lower. Dares he? Has he the steady selfless valor that will be needed to fight through many years by the side of this forlorn creature against an enemy uglier—and, oh! how much more potent!—than any of the fierce forest creatures in contest with which he has so often lightly perilled his life? Dares he? He has never been lacking in self-reliance—been, perhaps, too little apt to blanch at the obstacles strewn in his life-path. Is he going to blench now? Whether it be to his credit or his shame, the answer does not come all at once. Dares he? The response comes at last—comes slowly, comes solemnly, yet comes certainly:

"Yes."

He can never again laugh at Byng for his tears, for he is undoubtedly crying himself now.

"Elizabeth! Elizabeth!"—he cannot get further than that at first—"you—you are the worst-used woman in the world! and I—I have not the least desire to see the Escorial!"

(The End.)

SELF-HELP ESSENTIAL.

Experience shows more and more every day that the man who knows first is he who is most in demand, both in the professional and in the commercial world, and in domestic life as well. The duffer and the simpleton have no chance now, and in their place enters the shrewd, well-mannered, well-informed business man, in the first case, and the agreeable, polished friend and companion in the latter. These qualities can be cultivated in one's spare time, and it is the man who puts his leisure to the best use who gets on in this world.

A boy never so thoroughly realizes that quarrelling is sinful as when he is getting licked in a fight.

"Give us a man who sings at his work," says Carlyle. Yes, deliver him into our hands and we'll gladly do the rest.

BABY'S DANGER.

More little lives are lost during the hot weather months than at any other time of the year. In the summer months little ones are the victims of diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentery and stomach troubles. These come suddenly and without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay may mean death. During the hot weather months Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there is a young child. An occasional use of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles. Or if the troubles come unawares a prompt use of this medicine will bring the child through safely. Mrs. J. Renard, New Glasgow, Que., says: "I cannot speak too highly of Baby's Own Tablets. One of my children had a severe attack of diarrhoea which the Tablets promptly cured." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INSANITY IN BRITAIN.

The Lunacy Commissioners' Report Shows Increase.

The annual report of the British Lunacy Commissioners, published recently, shows a disquieting increase in the population of Great Britain's asylums.

At the beginning of this year one out of every 282 persons in England and Wales was reported to be insane. Ten years ago the ratio of insane persons was only one to 314. From 1860 to 1906 the population of England and Wales increased 55½ per cent., while the insane increased 133 per cent.

A significant fact brought to light by the report is the spread of senile dementia, which alone accounted for over 38 per cent. of last year's fresh lunacy cases. Discussing this phase of the situation, one medical authority expressed the belief that we live too long for the kind of work most of us do.

"The advanced medical knowledge of to-day," said the authority referred to, "keeps a multitude of persons alive whose minds are practically worn out. The present age demands more brain work and nerve-strain from every one than was demanded only a few years ago. There is less and less demand for people who can only use their hands. The physical wear and tear has decreased, while the brain work and the strain on the nervous system have increased.

"The result is that the mind dies first and the body is kept alive by medical science, which thus adds to the growing list of senile dementia cases in our asylums."

KIDNEY TROUBLE

Suffered Two Years—Relieved In Three Months.

C.B. FIZER.

MR. C. B. FIZER, Mt. Sterling, Ky., writes:

"I have suffered with kidney and other trouble for ten years past.

"Last March I commenced using Peruna and continued for three months have not used it since, nor have I felt a pain.

"I believe that I am well and I therefore give my highest commendation to the curative qualities of Peruna.

Pe-ru-na For Kidney Trouble.
Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes:

"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble, and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time.

"This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna and Manalin.

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin, and now I feel better than I have for some time.

"I feel that Peruna and Manalin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the business of the kidneys to remove from the blood all poisonous materials. They must be active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need a little assistance.

Peruna is exactly this sort of a remedy. It has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

It is estimated that to put the entire British telegraphic system underground would cost about $125,000,000.

It is calculated that the amount spent in advertising in Great Britain amounts to about $450,000 every day.

British Houses of Parliament cost $16,500,000, which is the same amount as St. Peter's at Rome cost in building.

The German Empress owns jewels worth $550,000, and has the right to wear the Crown jewels, valued at $800,000.

BECAUSE OF CONVENTION

WRITER TELLS OF ORGANIZED STUPIDITY IN ENGLAND.

There Are No Original Ideas in Any Department—Medical Profession Scored.

"Conventionalism is the main cause of our national degeneration, and conventionalism is merely another name for organized stupidity by the repression of originality. It is a sort of red-tapeism which pervades every department of national life."

Such was the pronouncement made to the Daily Mirror by one of London's leading medical men.

"Great Britain has been beaten," he said, "at football, tennis, golf, rowing and shooting by other countries, and in her manners, morality, religion, law, medicine, and dress she is fast dropping behind all other nations."

"Take shooting, for instance. The military authorities have just discovered that a right-handed man is usually left-eyed. Conventionalism says 'shoot from the right shoulder'; common sense says the opposite.

"Look at the telephone companies. They put the receivers on the left-hand side, when most people are right-eared. Conventionality again. It is done to-day because it is always been done that way.

"Take handwriting. Everybody who writes a free, quick and useful hand holds his pen or pencil quite differently from the conventional style taught in schools.

"But there is no department of national life where conventionalism is so rampant as in the medical profession.

"I say in all seriousness that the enormous death-rate among children and the unhygienic condition of our people is due to this. Doctors meet together and read learned papers to one another, and these are afterwards published in papers which no layman sees.

ALL BECAUSE OF CONVENTION.

"The traditions of the old mystery-mongering doctor have been kept up too long. And yet a man who displays a little originality is condemned and ostracized because he despises convention.

"Our teachers are incompetent. The man who lectures on physical degeneration is not strong enough to swing a cat.

"The muscular development expert is a puny four-foot man, with a flat chest and froomstick legs, and the diet specialist looks as though a good square meal would be the salvation of him.

"And all because of convention. America, Germany, and our colonies throw over conventions and beat us all along the line. When are we going to get rid of antiquated ideas?"

NEW AND STRANGE.

Something About the Latest Ideas on the Market.

A novelty in clocks is that which soaks the time instead of announcing the hour or half-hour by so many strokes of a bell. The phonograph inside the clock tells the time in a well-modulated voice.

Barbers are adopting an idea which

WAS A BOGUS NOBLEMAN

SECURED AN EARLY START IN CAREER OF CRIME.

Seymour Barton, Who Posed as a Nobleman, Imprisoned for Life for Murder.

Seymour Barton, known from one end of America to the other as "Lord Berrington," will not hang for murdering James McCann four years ago, but will undergo lifelong imprisonment. In commuting the sentence, the Governor of Missouri announced: "No man in Missouri can be executed without his consent." and Barton apparently still thinks life worth living.

Thus disappears from the public stage another of the tribe of bogus noblemen who imposed themselves upon the gullibility of democratic people, many of whom, perhaps the majority, still dearly love a lord. Barton's chief stock-in-trade was a good English accent, a decent appearance, and colossal cheek, and these assets were used to advantage more particularly in rural districts, where, on his meteoric visits, he was apparently welcomed with open arms.

STARTED EARLY IN CRIME.

Barton secured an early start in his career of crime. When but seven years of age he was arrested at Tunbridge Wells, England, for incendiarism. He received a sentence of five years, but broke out of jail. When eighteen he became a more accomplished criminal, stole $80,000, was arrested and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, but he forged pardon papers and again escaped.

Then he travelled in the best society, stole everything of value that he could find, visited France, Germany, Spain and India, and served terms of imprisonment in all four countries. Alternately Barton was an adept and then a bungler in his crimes. Sometimes his performances baffled the most skilled detectives, and again his work was easily traced out. His matrimonial was almost as varied as his criminal career.

MANY MARRIAGES.

In 1889 he married Miss Celestine Elizabeth Miller, of New York, took her to England, and deserted her. In 1902 he married a young Canadian woman and deserted her three days later. In 1903, posing as Lord Berrington, he married beautiful Miss Wilhelmina Grace Cochran, of St. Louis, daughter of a Kansas City pork packer. She discovered that he was not a real lord and obtained a divorce, while Berrington got six months in jail. Many other marriages are attributed to him.

The bogus lord supposedly murdered James McCann and a friend for his money, with the intention of marrying Mrs. McCann. McCann aided Barton, taking him into his own home to live. In June, 1903, McCann disappeared from home, and a few days later his body was found in a quarry. Barton was arrested for the murder and convicted.

Barbers are adopting an idea which has been used by certain dentists; this is to have a pad of paper on the chair, instead of a pad of cloth, where the head rests. After each sitting the upper square of paper is removed, leaving the pad fresh and clean for the next occupant. The advantage of this idea is obvious.

In placing cooked food in tins or jars, it is customary to set the receptacles in a boiler and boil them for a short time prior to sealing. To take the jars from this boiling water without being scalded is a feat requiring some skill, so a lifter has been invented. A plate is pushed under the jar; a handle is then turned, when a holder drops over the neck, and the jar is lifted clear of the water and deposited on a slab. The lifter is a kind of miniature crane.

A firm of dry shampoo is now being adopted by those who are prevented by fear of rheumatism or neuralgia from wetting the head. Powdered orris is gently rubbed on the head, after the hair has been brushed; a cap is placed over the hair, and is allowed to remain all night. In the morning the hair is brushed again, and the result is equal to that of any ordinary shampoo.

A flag-holder, for window decorations, has been devised by a workman. A wood block is made with a rounded edge in which holes are bored to receive the flag-stuffs. This rounded edge gives the proper spread for two, three, or more flags, which are fastened in these sockets by screws to prevent them from being blown away. The block is levelled on one side so as to give a satisfactory angle for flying flags to advantage, and it can easily be secured to the window frame. This holder is so simple that anyone can make it.

A new sleeve-holder, for keeping short sleeves in place while putting on an overcoat or jacket, is made of a length of tape with a ring at both ends. One ring is smaller than the other, so that it can be slipped through the larger one to form a noose in the tape. The noose is tightened round the end of the sleeve and the cuff, while the free ring is held by the thumb. The short sleeve is thus kept from being pushed up, and much trouble and annoyance is prevented.

It is a Liver Pill.—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is a delicate organ, peculiarly susceptible to the disturbances that come from irregular habits or lack of care in eating and drinking. This accounts for the great many liver regulators now pressed on the attention of sufferers. Of these there is none superior to Parmedee's Vegetable Pills. Their operation though gentle is effective, and the most delicate can use them.

MOST REVOLTING CRUELTY LEADING MARKETS

A Young German Ship Apprentice Brutally Treated.

A despatch from Campbellton, N. B., says: From Bonaventure comes a tale of cruelty that would seem incredible but for the testimony of eyewitnesses. The victim is a young German, and his oppressors were, it is alleged, Captain K. S. Kristiansen of the Norwegian barque Agat and the first mate of the same vessel. The Agat arrived at Bonaventure on September 1, and finished loading on September 18. The cruelties came under the observation of Stevedore Gallagher and his men a day or two after they began loading. One morning they found the boy tied to a ring bolt on deck. Both his hands and feet were tied, and he could scarcely move half a foot. He was kept in this position for days, it is alleged, and the only food handed him consisted of burned crusts and water. He told the stevedore that the mate had thumped his head against the deck until it had driven him mad. The boy was taken, bound as he was, a rope attached to him, and lowered over the side of the vessel, then dipped several times into the water, and at length brought out, more dead than alive.

On another occasion the longshoremen saw the mate with an iron bar chase the boy up through the rigging, the boy all the while screaming in a terrified manner. Baring his neck and shoulders, the boy showed Oswald Smith of Campbellton and others marks which he said had been inflicted by the mate with a red-hot iron.

Mr. Smith remonstrated with the captain for treating the boy as he did, saying that the boy could not understand his orders. The second mate, it is said, was about the only member of the crew who sympathized with the boy. He told Second Stevedore Garratt that if he was treated the way the boy was he would kill every man on board and then himself.

The stories of the cruelties were brought ashore by men loading the vessel, and they reached the local authorities, with the result that officers went on board the vessel and took the boy ashore. They also wired some of the facts to the German Consul at Montreal. The Consul wired back to have the mate and captain arrested, on information laid by the boy. Both the captain and mate were arrested and taken to New Carlisle and locked up, and their examination began on Tuesday before Magistrate Tremblay. The captain was fined $100 and the mate fined $100 and sent to jail for three months.

Another German boy, who was also the victim of ill-treatment on board the Agat, ran away. He was located by the authorities, and was one of the witnesses against the mate. It was brought out that while the boy was tied hand and foot a cat was tied to him, and that he was subjected to other horrifying cruelties.

Fashion Hints.

NEWEST WRINKLES.

Lace on lingerie, while still much in favor, is less popular than embroidery for trimming the corset cover intended for ordinary wear. The latter both lasts longer and washes better than lace, even the durable German valenciennes.

A simple dress may be given quite an air by wearing with it one of the new ruches that are so fashionable just now. The latest ones are long and stole shaped. A lovely one recently seen was made of cluny lace, the design lightly covered with tiny ruches, but not so closely as to conceal the pattern of the lace.

A very novel collar is made of many ruches of tulle mixed with velvet baby ribbon in black and white, the black velvet forming flowers.

A striking new napin is of the mother of pearl now so fashionable for trimmings, belt buckles, studs and cuff buttons. It has a head as large as a pigeon's egg.

The quaint and becoming cloche shape is much in evidence this season may be developed charmingly in a hat of fine chip in a soft pastel silk, with a full wreath of shaded pink roses for the chief trimming. The flowers pass over the brim toward the back and are arranged under the brim in a decorative "cache-peigne" mixed with soft choux of tulle and a knot of black velvet ribbon.

Silver in braids or fancy trimmings is largely used on the pale gray fabrics the ordinary straight veil is to tie it in a knot at the back and allow the ends to disappear. There is an art in adjusting a veil so as to bring out the good points and conceal the bad ones. A good many young people never wear a veil at all on their hats, which is all the better for their eyesight, their eyebrows, and their eyelashes. But a veil performs a kindly office to a woman who no longer is young; it gives a shade to the face which enhances the complexion. It must not sag, for that spoils the lines of the hat and makes the head look slovenly. To avoid this it must be brought tight over the brim, and to prevent it being loose at the chin it must be caught up tightly at the back, and a stray pin here and there often helps. People with double chins have a good deal to consider in arranging a veil not to enlarge the circumference by fastening it too closely around the throat, but if it only rests on the top of the chin that feature becomes more prominent. It must come just below the curve, throwing the roll of the chin into shadow.

The fashions of the day do not lend themselves to the easy arrangements of the veil. Some hats present many difficulties. Veils should be a yard and a quarter long, the middle placed in the centre of the brim in front, then brought to the back and carefully pinned. The upper side of the ends always should be pinned first, and then fasten the ends as carefully as possible.

There is a great deal in the choice of the material. Chenille dots are worn about half an inch apart. Every woman should choose exactly what suits herself. A clear veil demands a clear complexion.

YOUNG FOLKS

THE RAG DOLL'S FRIGHT.

"Oh, my!" exclaimed the new rag doll Upon the toy store shelf, "I've had the narrowest escape; I'm quite unlike myself."

The rag doll did indeed look pale; Her teeth were all a-chatter. The bisque doll took her by the hand: "Do tell me, what's the matter?"

"You see that man and woman there," The rag doll said, still quaking; "They almost bought me for a gift, Oh, dear I can't stop shaking."

"A birthday gift," they said I'd be, "Do hasten clerk and get her." And then they saw that Teddy bear In stocking, cap and sweater.

"Oh, see that cunning, woolly bear," The lady cried, delighted, And, oh, how I did watch the man, For I was so excited.

"And when the man said, 'Just the thing! We'll take the bear instead,' I grew quite weak from the relief, And almost lost my head."

The bisque doll looked. "Why, Raggie, dear, I'm sure you must be nervous. You know you must be sold some day; You came here for that purpose."

"The man and woman you point out I'm sure would treat you well. What is the matter with you, dear? you are too small a girl to go on a very I wish that you would tell."

The rag doll drew a long-drawn breath And slowly raised her head; The people now had left the store— Then earnestly she said:

"I know that you will understand, And so will every toy, When I tell you that those people planned To give me to a boy!"

HER JOURNEY.

Jennie was visiting Aunt Dora. She had promised her mother that she would be brave and not be homesick. She had really meant to keep that promise, but how could she know how very lonesome it was going to be in the strange town with no little girls to play with?

But if she could not be brave, she could be polite, she told herself. She listened patiently while Aunt Dora read from "Alice in Wonderland," and when she paused, her niece said, with a little sigh, "I wish I could go on a journey and have some adventures."

Aunt Dora laughed. "I am afraid you are too small a girl to go on a very long journey," she said, "but perhaps you are old enough to go on a short one. You shall take my red velvet purse and this bright nickel and go to the baker's and buy some tarts."

How Jennie's eyes danced as she put on her hat! If there was anything she was fond of it was tarts—and to be allowed to carry Aunt Dora's purse and go alone! Nothing could be nicer, she was sure.

Her journey to the bakeshop was uneventful, but she had forgotten all about being homesick, and she felt delightfully grown up as she paid for the three delicious, flaky tarts with mounds of currant jelly in the centre.

As she started for home with her purchase in a bag, she saw a dog so much like Rover, her own big, brave dog, that she called him, and began to smooth his silky head.

Now this dog's name happened to be Rover, too, and he often carried bund-wreath of shaded pink roses for the brief trimming. The flowers pass over the brim toward the back and are arranged under the brim in a decorative "cache-peigne" mixed with soft choux tulle and a knot of black velvet ribbon.

Silver in braids or fancy trimmings is largely used on the pale gray fabrics now so much in vogue.

It is a season of lace, with all the frills and flounces to which it lends itself. Real lace will be worn by every one who can possibly afford it, and real cluny or Bruges is seen even on simple morning frocks of batiste or linen.

Gilt or silvered ribbon maintains its popularity.

A new neckpiece of chiffon is a kind of ruche, wide at the back and narrowing to the front, made like the ruffs of the time of Henry IV. There is a knot of black velvet at the back, with ends and loops falling to the waist.

A stylish hat to accompany a tailor suit is of rough straw in royal blue, trimmed with a parrot with a fine tail, and two "arrah" quills. The drapery of brick red silk matches the color of the bird's tail.

Taffeta petticoats, trimmed with embroideries, are a decided novelty.

Women with good figures still like the corselet skirt. A smart suit recently seen was in hop-green chiffon broadcloth, worn with a wide-sleeved bolero, embroidered and applied with stitched strappings. With it was worn a chemise of Alencon and Irish lace.

A curious new fan is made of a real bird, parrot or any other kind, the feathers stuck on the skin itself. When this fan is closed the bird looks as if it were asleep. A specially pretty one was made of a green cuckoo.

Tassels, fringes, long loops and ends of velvet finished with tassels, and other dangling trimmings or fancy coats and blouses which have been seen all through the early spring were only an introduction, as it were, to the scarf idea, which is now pronounced in many of the late models.

On evening gowns of mousseline or chiffon are draped broad scarfs made of the material and finished at the ends with deep knotted fringe. These scarfs are sometimes plaited at the shoulders, fall low over the arms and are either knotted or caught at the bust line, hanging loosely from there on each side of the front. Again, they are brought smoothly over the shoulders in shawl effect and are confined by the girdle.

HOW TO WEAR A VEIL.

The accepted mode of the moment for should choose exactly what suits her. A clear veil demands a clear complexion.

LONG SLEEVES FOR FALL.

Every woman planning her fall wardrobe is wondering whether to make long or short sleeves. In Paris the street dresses and suits are being made with the three-quarter sleeves, to be worn with long gloves. The light-weight, filmy afternoon and evening dresses are made almost entirely with long sleeves.

The flowing and angel sleeves are seen in these long-sleeved models, which are made of filmy material.

The dainty short sleeve will be parted with reluctantly; that is certain, although our arms are ready for some kind of a covering after two years of exposure. The long sleeve will be a godsend to many girls, who regret the tan and freckles that they spent all summer trying to get.

The graceful kimono sleeves will be used as much as ever this fall, while for coats and dressy gowns the flowing Japanese effects will be seen.

TOWNS SWEEP AWAY.

Great Destruction of Life and Property in Spain.

A despatch from Madrid says: Unprecedented rains in Andalusia caused immense destruction of life and property. The Guadalquivir River has been converted into a raging torrent three miles wide, and bridges, houses and even entire villages have been swept away. The streets in the lower part of Malaga have been inundated and many families rendered homeless. Thirty persons were drowned at Malaga, 23 at Velez de Benaomar, 13 at Colemar, and about 100 in other places in the valley.

GOULD HAS CONFESSED.

Former Montreal Milliner a Cruel Murderer.

A despatch from Monte Carlo says: Vere St. Leger Gould, who lived for some time in Montreal, and carried on a millinery business there, has written to the local judge confessing that he and his wife, Violet, murdered Emma Levin, whose dismembered body was found in their baggage August 6 at Marseilles. They robbed the woman after knocking her unconscious, and when she screamed they killed her.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—There was practically nothing doing in the exporter class. One or two loads of light export steers sold from $4 to $4.40.

Butcher trade was fairly active. The best of the cattle sold from $4.25 to $4.50, with medium to good from $3.65 to $4.10. Choice cows sold from $3 to $3.60. Common stuff, canners, etc., sold at the way from $1.25 to $2.50.

Stockers and feeders were offered more freely, and sold at steady prices. Steers ranged from $3.25 to $3.50, and bulls are in demand at $2.25 to $2.50.

There was a moderate number of milkers offered and trade was steady at $35 to $50 for choice and $20 to $25 for common.

Calves were not offered freely. Prices held at 3c to 6c per lb.

Sheep and lambs were steady at unchanged prices. Ewes ranged from $4.25 to $4.40, and bucks and culls lower at $4.50 to $5.50.

Hogs were quoted unchanged at $6.12½ for select and $5.87½ for lights and fats.

FIFTEEN PERISH IN TRAIN WRECK.

And Many Also Injured on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

A despatch from Wheeling, West Virginia, says: Fifteen people were killed and fifteen injured in a wreck one mile from Bellair Junction, Ohio, on Saturday, caused by the head-on collision between Chicago Express No. 14 of the Baltimore and Ohio line and a freight train that had been given a siding to allow a clear track for the passenger train. The Chicago express, which was 3½ hours late, and was due here at 11.30 a.m., was running at about forty miles an hour, under signals for a clear track ahead, when it entered the Bellair Junction yards at Shick's Station, a mile from the Bellair Depot. A west-bound freight had been given a siding at Shick's Station to await the express, but through negligence the operator at the signal tower had failed to close the tracks between the east-bound train, on which the express was travelling, and the track on which the freight was standing. The engine of the express, following the line of the open switch, suddenly veered off, and before the brakes could be applied the engines of the passenger and the freight came together.

MUST HAVE PASSPORTS.

Plan to Stop Japanese Immigration from Hawaii.

A despatch from Vancouver says: The Dominion immigration agent, Dr. Monroe, has notified all steamship and transportation companies carrying Japanese to this city that no Japanese will be admitted to Canada unless they carry passports made out specifically to Canada. This stops the dumping of Japs in British Columbia from the Hawaiian Islands.

Now this dog's name happened to be Rover, too, and he often carried bundles for his mistress in his mouth. This little girl must want him to carry her bundle, he thought, so he took the bag out of Jennie's hands and started on ahead.

Poor little Jennie! This was not a pleasant sort of an adventure. The dog was running so fast she never could catch him. What should she do?

Why, he was coming back—and there was a little girl with him just about as old as Jennie!

"I saw my dog take your bundle," she explained. "I am so sorry! But, you see, he often carries my bundles for me, and he didn't know. He is really a very nice dog."

"Oh, it's all right!" Jennie said, brushing her tears away. "I know he must be a good dog, for he looks just like my Rover, and he is just the best dog that ever was! I'm glad he took my bag, for I shouldn't have seen you if he hadn't and I wanted somebody to play with so much. Can't you come to see me? I am visiting my Aunt Dora, and I am so lonesome!"

So the two little girls and Rover went home together, and when Aunt Dora heard Jennie's story she laughed and said, "Well, Jennie, you have had a real adventure, haven't you?"

BOLD BID FOR LIBERTY.

Prisoners at Portage la Prairie Caught After Breaking Out.

A despatch from Portage la Prairie, Man., says: Joseph Wynn, Dauphin, Man., who is awaiting his trial in the local jail on a charge of having attempted to murder Joseph Storey, at Grand View, made a bold bid for liberty on Wednesday afternoon. In the absence of the guard he by main strength forced apart two iron bars guarding the window. Tearing some sheets into strips a serviceable rope was manufactured, and by this means he lowered himself within twelve feet of the ground, dropping the remainder of the distance. His absence was quickly noticed, however, and the officials started off in hot pursuit, and were successful in capturing the man within an hour. This is Wynn's second escape, as he got away after his arrest at Dauphin.

A BOXER OUTBREAK.

Priest and Converts Murdered in Province of Kiangsi.

A despatch from Shanghai says: An outbreak of Boxerism has taken place at Nankangien, in the southern part of the Province of Kiangsi. An Italian priest and a number of converts have been murdered at the village of Taw-culi, and the Lazarist fathers' mission at Kanichowfu has been burned. The missionaries escaped to Kiafu, whence they telegraphed for assistance. Advice received here from Kanichowfu say that the Protestant missionaries there are all safe.

TWO KILLED AT CROSSING.

Returning From a Dance When Their Rig Was Struck by a Train.

A despatch from Kenora says: About 2 o'clock on Wednesday morning a fatal accident occurred at the C.P.R. crossing at Norman. Two young men, Otto Olsen, proprietor of the Stockholm Restaurant, and Chas. Dalkrist, were returning from a Swedish dance at Norman and were crossing the track, when their rig was struck by a work train and both were instantly killed. The rig was smashed to matchwood, but the driver, Harry Hayden, though thrown some two hundred feet, escaped with a few broken ribs. He was conveyed to the Jubilee Hospital. The horses were uninjured.

A REMARKABLE OPERATION

Doctors Saved the Life of a Man Almost Decapitated.

A despatch from New York says: Three surgeons at St. Gregory's Hospital had a hard struggle on Tuesday to save the life of a man who was almost decapitated by an elevator in a building at No. 213 Front street. The patient, Bernard Rush, while taking a load of 1st. from the first to the second floor, slipped and became wedged between the floor and the platform of the elevator. The elevator was stopped in time to save his head from being torn from the shoulders. At the hospital it was found that in addition to the large muscles of the neck being severed, several small arteries and veins were separated. The patient was conscious throughout the operation, which was performed without anesthetics of any kind. Rush was powerless to move his head because the largest muscles of the neck were snapped in two.

The physicians worked over the patient for nearly three hours, sewing together blood vessels and various structures of the neck. The jugular vein and the windpipe were not seriously injured. The neck was cut from ear to ear as cleanly as though it was done by a razor.

According to the physicians, more than twenty-two blood vessels, nerves, muscles, veins and arteries had to be sutured. The operation was a tedious one, some of the vessels being so small that the finest catgut had to be used.

The physicians said that the only thing that saved the man's life was that the head was forced backward. If it had been thrown forward it would have broken the spinal cord and several of the vertebrae, causing certain death. The man is expected to recover.

JUVENILE CRIME.

Adults Who Assist or Encourage Boys to do Wrong Should be Punished.

In many cases where children are charged with crime some adult is really behind it all, and should receive the punishment instead of the child. Mr. J. J. Kelsa, who, as Ontario Superintendent of work for children, is brought into daily contact with such matters, reports that hundreds of boys now in reformatories and jails would be good, law-abiding citizens if they had not been practically forced into wrong-doing by drunken parents, receivers of stolen property, etc. The Dominion Government now has before it a bill providing for modern children's courts, and one of the clauses is as follows:

"Any person who knowingly or willfully encourages, aids, causes, abets or connives at the commission by a child of a delinquency, or who knowingly or willfully does any act producing, promoting, or contributing to a child's being or becoming a juvenile delinquent, whether or not such person is the parent or guardian of the child, or who, being the parent or guardian of the child and being able to do so, willfully neglects to do that which would directly tend to prevent a child's being or becoming a juvenile delinquent, or to remove the conditions which render a child a juvenile delinquent, shall be liable on summary conviction before a juvenile court or a justice, to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year, or to both fine and imprisonment."

NO HAND GUIDED TRAIN.

Engine Driver Lay Unconscious on Floor of the Cab.

A despatch from New York says: While Henry Robertson, engineer of an Erie Railroad passenger train, lay senseless on the floor of his cab with a fractured skull on Wednesday, the locomotive, without a hand at the throttle, rushed full speed toward the Jersey City terminal, threatening destruction to the train and its passengers. Fireman Fleming, noticing that the speed did not slacken at places where the train should have been running slowly, climbed into the cab, and found the engineer on the floor, where he had dropped after being struck by a pole when he placed his head out of the cab window. None of the passengers, when they left the train, knew of their narrow escape. Robertson was removed to a hospital, where it was said he probably would die.

RUSSIA THINKS WAR INEVITABLE

Foresees Struggle Between Japan and United States.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: The conviction prevails here that war between Japan and the United States is inevitable in the distant future. The Novoe Vremya on Wednesday published an article entitled: "The New World Power," picturing the marvelous growth of American sea power during President Roosevelt's administration, warning Russian diplomacy "not to be caught unawares by coming events," and adding: "The day when the United States fleet passes out of the Strait of Magellan and sweeps into the waters of the Pacific will open a new era for the Eastern world. Official courtesies and the temporary truce in war talk do not conceal the fact that America is reaching out for the mastery of the Pacific and already is strong enough to attain it."

CYCLONE SWEEPS EUROPE

Whole Towns Under Water in the South of France.

A despatch from London says: England, which has suffered throughout September from the exaggerated clemency of the weather, is now receiving reports of a vast cyclone, chiefly affecting Western Europe. Atlantic steamship passengers bring accounts of much worse experiences than those met with by the Lusitania's passengers. Lisbon was overswept by wind, rain and thunder last Tuesday. The tornado travelled southward, striking Malaga and even extended to Casablanca, on the Moorish coast, where the French camp was wrecked Thursday.

The main body of the cyclone meanwhile went further east and slightly north and burst over the south of France Friday morning unheralded by storm signs. There the centre of the disturbance seems to have halted, and the downpour continued on Sunday. The damage to the vintage in the Department of Herault is now enormous. The valleys are flooded and whole towns are under water. Some of the rivers have risen twelve feet, and where they have receded human bodies have been found in the branches of trees. President Fallieres is visiting the stricken districts. Rain and thunder continue incessantly.

On the plain of Florensac, near Montpellier, where President Fallieres arrived on Sunday night, over 2,000 vine-diggers, men, women, and children, were gathering grapes, when panting gendarmes rushed upon them crying: "Run for your lives!" All dashed for high ground, and in less than ten minutes a swirling mass of water swept across the plain. Thirty women and twenty men took refuge in one small farm house, where they remained for thirty-six hours without food. Military engineers in pontoons and boats were scouring the district rescuing people who have been imprisoned for days. The River Herault, which has flooded the entire plain of Agde, is still rising.

MANY DEATHS.

Toulon has also suffered, and communication is broken. There have been many deaths, but the precise number cannot be ascertained yet. There were torrential rains in Lisbon on the occasion of the return of the Crown Prince from his African tour. Nevertheless the Queen ran out from a pavilion and embraced him under the deluge. One quarter of Lisbon is inundated. Lightning struck the operating room of St. Joseph's Hospital, and two patients died of fright. At the theatres, where rehearsals were proceeding, the artists fell on their knees and offered wild prayers. Many of them were in such a condition that the performance had to be canceled.

The damage at Malaga is placed at $4,000,000. Parties of immigrants, who were waiting to embark, have disappeared, and there is no trace of them.

LOOK TO CANADA FOR SUPPLY.

Liverpool Merchants Hear the Canadian Commissioners.

A despatch from London says: At a meeting of the Provision Trade Association, at Liverpool, J. E. Worrall, introducing Mr. Ruddick, Canadian Dairy Commissioner, said the United States was becoming less and less an exporting country, so they must look to the colonies for their increase of food supplies. He hoped Mr. Ruddick would tell all Canadian shippers that Liverpool importers were in a position and determined to do business.

Mr. Ruddick, in the course of his address, dealt with various matters of technical interest to the provision trade. He was convinced the falling off in shipments of butter from Canada was only temporary, and when prices of cheese and butter became better a large quantity of milk could be turned into butter instead of cheese. Bacon shipments would also become greater as the Government were assisting exportations from Canada.

KILLED BY FALLEN WIRE.

Dundas Man Struck Down While Walking on the Street.

A despatch from Dundas says: Samuel Sutton was killed by an electric light wire which had fallen, while walking down the main street about 7.15 on Friday evening. Mr. Sutton was a well-known resident, coming to Dundas from Freelon, Ont., where he was born. He was an employee of the Canada Maltng Company, and was about sixty years of age. He leaves a widow and grown-up family. The light rain falling in the evening made the wire more dangerous. He was taken to the town hall, a few yards from where he was stricken, and medical aid was summoned almost immediately, but the man was past aid. It is alleged that the fallen wire, which was a service wire of the Dundas Electric Company, was insuffi-

MADE SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT.

Baldwin Airship Manoeuvred at Halifax Fair Grounds.

A despatch from Halifax, N.S., says: The feature of the provincial exhibition grand stand show on Thursday was the flight of Baldwin's airship. Just before sundown the breeze died away and made it possible for Baldwin to set out on his voyage, which was accomplished most successfully. The airship rose gracefully, pointing into the wind, and manoeuvred for several minutes, in different directions over the grounds. A second flight was made to show the tendency of the airship to constantly turn to the right unless guided by the rudder. This the airship did automatically, making a complete circuit over the grounds. Then the full descent was made, the airship coming back to the exact spot from which it had risen.

Rev. J. D. Hooker, of Lexington, Ky., has become violently insane after drinking a large bottle of medicine for some slight ailment.

Two boys, one fifteen, the other thirteen, at Paducah, Ky., rubbed red pepper into the eyes of a playmate and it is thought his eyesight is impaired for life.

The ledger and stock book of the Standard Oil Company, wanted by the United States attorney in present inquiry, have disappeared and cannot be found.

Seriously injured by an automobile at Trenton, N. J., Donald Rupert, a small boy, refused to go home in the police ambulance lest his mother should be frightened.

Wagering that he could catch and hold a bear which was roaming about the streets of Richmond, Texas, Sunday, Adam Kauler laid hold of the animal and was killed.

Fred Warner, an electric lineman at Ithaca, N. Y., saved the life of a fellow-worker by wresting from his hands a live wire carrying 2,200 volts. Warner's hands were covered with a felt hat.

Figures produced at the investigation into the Standard Oil Company showed that in 1903 the Indiana Pipe Line Company, a subsidiary of the Standard, made a profit of $14,091,022 on an investment of $2,228,758.

Mrs. Matilda Warje, of Paradise, N. Y., was walking to her home late at night, when three masked men stopped her and stole from her $60, a pair of diamond earrings, a valuable brooch and two gold rings.

Many Men on Grand Trunk Pacific in West Quit Work.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: An estimated shortage of several thousand men for the harvesting of the wheat crop in the West has not only made itself felt in the farming community of the whole country, but has necessarily forced a delay in the rapidly with which railway construction has been carried on in the Western country. As a result the contractors and the railway people are now feeling the labor stringency probably more keenly than at any other period of the year. Higher wages and a pressing demand for men has been the motive which has caused 40 per cent. of the men to quit work who were engaged on the Grand Trunk Pacific between Portage La Prairie and Miniota, a distance of 120 miles.

COLLISION IN TUNNEL.

Twenty Passengers Injured in Railway Accident in France.

Despatch from Nantes, France, says: The trans-atlantic train, carrying first-class passengers from Paris to Cherbourg, where they were to embark on the White Star Line steamer Adriatic, was telescoped on Wednesday in the Braval tunnel. Twenty persons were injured. The disaster is said to have been due to the negligence of the crew of the train carrying the trans-atlantic passengers, as no lights were burning in the rear of the train, and no torpedoed were placed on the track behind it, as required by the regulations when a train halts in a tunnel. This neglect caused another train to run into the passenger train bound for Cherbourg.

CONTRABAND WAS SEIZED.

Provincial License Inspector Had Good Trip Through New Ontario.

A despatch from Toronto says: During his recent trip through Northern Ontario, Provincial License Inspector George E. Morrison secured 28 convictions and collected $2,130 cash in fines for contraventions of the liquor license laws. One of the men arrested was sent down for four months, as it was his second offence. Mr. Morrison seized two barrels of stuff which had been shipped as cider from the Quebec side of the Temiskaming Lake to McDougall's Chutes. The seizure was made at Englehart, and the liquor was confiscated and destroyed.

MOTORMAN KILLED.

Hugh Hayes of Ottawa Ran His Car Into One Ahead.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Hugh Hayes, York Street, Ottawa, lost his life on Saturday night by a rear-end collision between two Britannia Street cars. Hayes was a motorman on one of the cars and was not of long experience. By some inadvertence he failed to stop his car in time, and it crashed into the car ahead, which was filled with passengers, but which fortunately was little damaged. Hayes' car was badly smashed and Hayes himself was so seriously injured that he died in the hospital at noon on Sunday. Luckily there was no one on the car but himself and the conductor.

JAPANESE PASSPORTS.

Arrivals at Vancouver Must Have Them Direct From Japan.

A despatch from Vancouver says: Dr. Monro, Dominion immigration officer at this port, stated on Saturday evening that he had received instructions from the seat of government not to allow any more Japanese to land here without having passports direct from Japan to Canada. Further than that, he stated that he had notified the steamboat and transportation companies to that effect. Dr. Monro received his instructions on Saturday.

...ing company, and was about sixty years of age. He leaves a widow and grown-up family. The light rain falling in the evening made the wire more dangerous. He was taken to the town hall, a few yards from where he was stricken, and medical aid was summoned almost immediately, but the man was past aid. It is alleged that the fallen wire, which was a service wire of the Dundas Electric Company, was insufficiently insulated, and for that reason largely contributed to the fatality.

CROSSING THE WHEAT.

Prof. McBride of McGill Reports Cambridge Experiments Successful.

A despatch from Montreal says: Professor McBride of McGill University has just returned from Cambridge University, where he investigated the new process of wheat crossing. He believes that the question has been solved. He claims that the qualities of certain kinds of wheat are due to heredity and are not the result of the climate. By a process of cross-breeding he has got a product which combines the good qualities of Manitoba hard with those of English wheat. The large, soft heads of English wheat and the hard qualities of Manitoba No. 1 make an ideal product and one which will double the yield of the Canadian wheat fields.

BIG LUMBER DEAL.

American Capitalists Purchase Extensive Property.

A despatch from Campbellton, N. B., says: One of the biggest lumber deals in the history of the north shore has been consummated. Sumner & Co. have sold their entire property in Gloucester County to American capitalists. The property includes a large saw mill at Bathurst, a general store there, and extensive lumber areas throughout that country. The price paid is said to be in the neighborhood of $250,000.

TREASURES FOR THE SURGEON.

Ward Family of Gladstone, Man., Revel in Broken Limbs.

A despatch from Gladstone, Man., says: Geo. Ward was struck on Thursday by a belt on a gasoline sawing machine. He was thrown to the ground and his right arm and leg broken. This is the fifth time he has had his legs broken. His father, James S. Ward, has three times had his leg broken, his son John both legs and an arm broken, and another son, Jim, has had an arm broken. The family came from the States seven years ago.

DISASTROUS FLOODS IN JAPAN

Over Six Hundred Perished. With Much Damage to Property.

A despatch from Victoria, B. C., says: More than 600 lives have been lost in floods in the last week in Japan, according to advices received here. The River Otonashigawa, running through the town of Fukuchigama, near Kioto, overflowed its banks, rose to a distance of more than 50 feet above high water marks previously established and caused immense damage to property and loss of life.

The disaster was an exceptionally heavy blow to Japan, because it came as a climax to a succession of calamities on land and sea. The trouble began with a famine in the northern part of the empire, when thousands faced starvation and many persons died.

Twenty Armed Men Found in Woods Near Peterhof.

A despatch from Cologne says: The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Magdeburg Zeitung states that the Cossacks on guard over the Peterhof Palace surprised on Tuesday night twenty armed ruffians, twelve of them wearing military uniforms, in the woods near Belghof. It is supposed that they intended to attack the imperial palace.

RESPONSIBLE FOR WRECK.

Two Operators and Brakesman Arrested for Disaster at Vaudreuil.

A despatch from Montreal says: Serg. Staeter, operator at St. Dominique; Clarence Howell, brakesman of the first train, and Loyal Streets, operator at Vaudreuil, are held criminally responsible for the train wreck at Vaudreuil, on the 18th inst., through which Albert Johnson, of Kingston, Ont., lost his life. The verdict was returned by the coroner's jury on Wednesday morning. The coroner issued warrants for the arrest of the men.

THRESHING IS GENERAL.

Crops in the West Are Turning Out a Fwair Yield.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: The C.P.R. crop report, which was issued on Thursday shows that threshing is general throughout the West, and the crops in most districts are turning out a fair yield. The work has been a little retarded by the wet weather.

Scientists at Lyons, France, are conducting experiments in transmitting electrical energy without the use of wires.

Rev. E. C. Cayley, pastor of St. Simon's Church, Toronto, on Sunday commented upon the extravagance and wastefulness that had entered into Toronto life.

The Marconi Company has stated that with two stations they can handle as much business as eight ordinary cable lines.

The most trying time for a sick person is between the hours of 1 and 4 a.m. Vitality becomes diminished, and the strength should therefore be fortified as far as possible, and with some strengthening food, either soup, or egg or milk, about midnight. Meals should be made to look as tempting as possible, and the tray should be taken away as soon as the repast is finished. To leave undisturbed food by a person's bedside in the hope that it may be eaten later on is simply enough to disgust the patient with food altogether.

While the Government was doing its utmost to relieve the sufferers, Hakodate was burned, with a loss of 100 lives and nearly 100,000 being left homeless. Strenuous efforts by the Government were exerted to succor the survivors.

The floods then began in several parts of the empire, with great destruction of property and loss of lives. Public mourning following the disasters had not ceased when news reached the capital of the drowning of the 600 in the latest flood.

Despite its being already taxed almost to the limit, the Government is relieving those who survived the deluge but lost all their property in it.

The Black Hole of Calcutta.

A scientist, writing of the black hole of Calcutta and its atmosphere, says: "On the 20th of June, 1756, about 8 o'clock in the evening, 146 men were forced at the point of the bayonet into a dungeon, eighteen feet square. They had been but a few minutes confined in this infernal prison before every one fell into a perspiration so profuse that no idea can be formed of it. This brought on a raging thirst, the most difficult respiration and an outrageous delirium. Such was the horror of their situation that every insult that could be devised against the guard without and all the opprobrious names the viceroy and his officers could be loaded with were repeated to provoke the guard to fire upon them and terminate their sufferings. Before 11 o'clock the same evening one-third of the men were dead, and before 6 next morning only twenty-three came out alive, but most of them in a high putrid fever. All these dreadful effects were occasioned by the want of atmospheric air and by their breathing a superabundant quantity of nitrogen emitted from their lungs."

Too Good to Miss.

"Theater audiences have improved in recent years," said a manager. "Why, with provincial touring companies in the past maltreatment was regularly expected. In fact, the companies profited by it in more ways than one."

"I know of a company that was playing 'The Broken Vow' in Paint Rock, a one night stand. The audience didn't like 'The Broken Vow,' and eggs, cabbages and potatoes rained up on the stage."

"Still the play went on. The hero raved through his endless speeches, dodging an onion or a baseball every other minute and pretty sore from those missiles that he hadn't been able to dodge."

"But finally a gallery auditor in a paroxysm of rage and scorn, hurled a heavy boot, and the actor, thoroughly alarmed, started to retreat."

"'Keep on playing, you fool,' hissed the manager from the wings as he looked in the boot with an umbrella. 'Keep on till we get the other one.'"

How a Tree Grows.

Both earth and air are required for the growth of a plant or tree. The roots absorb moisture from the soil, which, in the form of a watery fluid called common sap, rises through the fibers of the last deposited annular ring, traversing all the branches and leaf stalks until it reaches the leaves; there it undergoes a change by the absorption of carbonic acid from the air. It then travels downward again in the form of broner sap, just under-

A Singular Calculation.

It would require, according to the calculations of a scientist, the power of 10,000 horsepower engine about 10,000,000 years to lift the earth 70,000 feet in height, and to do this work, raising thirteen pounds of water per horsepower per hour, would require 10,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 gallons of water, or more than would be discharged at the mouth of the Mississippi in 6,000 years. This would be enough, the writer estimates, to cover the entire surface of the earth to a depth of not less than 300 feet, to convert which into steam, using good boilers, would require some 4,000,000,000,000,000 tons of coal. If the latter (100,000,000,000,000,000) mineral was loaded on quantity of the earth, each it would demand 200,000,000,000,000 such cars. If the latter were thirty feet long and all coupled together in one train it would reach around the earth 15,000 times and, if running twenty-five miles per hour, would consume 25,000,000 years in running the length of itself. So much for figures.

"Crocodile" Tears.

The phrase "crocodile tears" owes its origin to the imagination of some of the old travelers, who invented the fable that the crocodile weeps over its prey. One of the earliest English globe trotters to mention this fiction was Sir John Mandeville, who in his "Travels" (1499), speaking of "Ethiopia" "Ynde" and an "Elephant Silla," says:

"That Lond is full of Serpents and of Cockadilles. These Cockadilles ben a manner of Long Serpente, zalowe and rayed above, and had four Feete and schorte Thyes and grete Nayles as Clees or Talons, and there ben some that had five Fadme in length and some of six and a halfendal. And in the nyght they dwellen in the Water and on the Day won upon the Lond. These Serpentes stee men, and they eten hem weyngne, and when they eten they moven the over Jowe and noughte the nether Jowe, and they have no tonge."—St. Louis Republic.

Humorous Chinese Graft.

A certain Chinese taotal (magistrate) having told his men to have two ingots of gold sent to his treasury for purchase, the shopmen brought them in and in answer to the query of the taotal told him that the price was so much in taels, but added, "This is the ordinary price, but for your honor we will knock off one-half of the price." Then the taotal said to his underlings: "Seeing that they are to sell to me at only one-half price, just give them back one ingot of gold and put the other in my treasury, and thus their account is settled. Goodby." So the underlings of the yamen did so, but still the shopmen hung around waiting. The taotal asked them why they were waiting, when their account had been already settled. Said the shopmen, "When did your honor pay your humble servants?" Then the magistrate answered with a very fierce air: "Talo nu tsai!" (impertinent slaves), "did you not say that these two gold ingots were half price to me? Then did I not give you back one ingot and keep the other and thus settle your account without the least injustice according to your own proposition? So be off with you or my lieutors will give you a taste of the scourge."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctor pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

A five-year-old girl was very ill, and, noticing the anxiety of her parent, she said, "Mamma, do you think I'm going to die?"

"No, my dear," replied the mother, "we think you will soon be better."

"Well," said the little one, "I'd like to die and go to heaven on a visit if I was sure I could come back if I didn't like the place."

A Wonderful Dog.

I ran a news stand at Port Jervis, N. Y. I owned a common shepherd dog which was a very intelligent animal and was of great assistance to me in the newspaper business, running across the street with papers in his mouth to customers. He attracted much attention, and he got me many new customers, for everybody liked him, he was such a business dog.

I was sick one day and not able to sell my papers. My dog came in my room where I lay in bed. He fumbled around in my pants pockets and took the keys to my news stand and ran out of the house, and the first thing I knew he had the newspaper stand opened up and doing business.

He was very clever in making change, changing five and ten dollar bills without a single mistake, working the cash register with his paws, and everything ran smoothly until a man came up and passed him a lead quarter. My dog got mad and lost his temper entirely, and I was forced to interfere. With much trouble I managed to pull them apart.

If this dog had not had such a quick temper I would have started him in business for myself. This dog is still living.

Crushed by Beecher.

Henry Ward Beecher was once approached by a young man who considered himself very clever.

"Do you know, Mr. Beecher," said he, "I've been thinking that I would settle down. Now, I like your preaching, but when I go to your church and see such men as old S. and others, grasping skinflints and hypocrites to the core, sitting there in full membership, why, the thing is just a little too much for me, and really," he added, "I cannot join."

"Well, you're right," said Mr. Beecher. "Every church has such men, and I fancy Plymouth is not free from them, and until you spoke I have always wondered why the good Lord permitted it. Now I understand."

"Ah," gurgled the young fellow, "I am glad I have thrown light on the question! What strikes you as the reason, Mr. Beecher?"

"Well," replied the great preacher, "it is permitted in order to keep just such fools as you out of the churches."

The Nearest Approach.

An English tourist visited Arran and being a keen disciple of Izaak Walton was arranging to have a day's good sport. Being told that the cleg, or horsefly, would suit his purpose admirably for a lure, he addressed himself to Christy, the highland servant girl, "I say, my girl, can you get me some horseflies?"

Christy looked stupid, and he repeated his question. Finding that she did not yet comprehend him, he exclaimed: "Why, girl, did you never see a horsefly?"

"Naa, sir," said the girl, "but a wansie saw a coo jump over a preshipie!"

fibers of the last deposited annular ring, traversing all the branches and leaf stalks until it reaches the leaves; there it undergoes a change by the absorption of carbonic acid from the air. It then travels downward again in the form of proper sap, just underneath the bark, which is expanded by the accession of moisture and in the cavity so formed a new layer of material is deposited which gradually hardens and forms a new annular ring. And so, from absorbing the moisture and minerals of the soil and the carbonic acid of the air the tree goes on until it finishes its cycle and dies.

Grandfather's Portrait.

A villager, intensely conceited and ignorant, but quite wealthy, was persuaded to have his grandfather's picture repainted.

The artist, not having been decently treated by the villager, drew the portrait almost in a nude form. Rolling it up, he told the man not to look at it before the coming New Year. On that day the villager ordered the picture to be hung up that he might pay it his New Year respects. As it was being unrolled he frantically waved his hands and shouted: "Wait! Wait! The old gentleman is not ready, for he is not yet dressed."—From the Chinese.

The Worth of His Money.

Not seldom in highland districts the attendance at church during unpropitious weather is but scanty. One minister, finding himself on a boisterous Sunday confronted with but one solitary auditor, who happened to be a gruff, outspoken character, took him into his confidence, with a view to propitiate him. "Will I go on with the sermon, John?" John answered gruffly, "Of course." Getting into the pulpit and leaning over it, he asked, "Will I give you the Gaelic sermon or the English one?" "Gie's baith. Ye're weel paid for 't," said John, more gruffly still.—Dundee Advertiser.

Bituminous Coal.

Shortly after the adoption of bituminous coal as a fuel in England a royal proclamation was used forbidding its use and authorizing the destruction of the furnaces of the users, who were characterized as evil doers. Scarcely of fuel, it seems, shortly compelled the resumption of its use. In the reign of Elizabeth bituminous coal was again prohibited during sessions of parliament lest the health of the members suffer thereby.—London Telegraph.

The Richest.

That country is the richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy human beings; that man is the richest who, having perfected the functions of his own life to the utmost, has also the widest helpful influence, both personal and by means of his possessions, over the lives of others.—John Ruskin.

Gallant Man (aside)—At last I have her all to myself. Now I can tell her how I love her and ask her to be mine. How shall I do it, I wonder?
Gentle Maid (behind her fan)—It is surely coming. I am so nervous and frightened. I know he is going to be terribly dramatic. I do hope I shan't have to help him up off his knees. Goodness, why doesn't he say something? I must break this horrible silence. (Aloud, recklessly) Have you ever been abroad?
Gallant Man (smilingly)—No. I'm saving it for a wedding tour.
Gentle Maid (demurely)—Why, how funny; so am I.
Gallant Man (meaningly)—Then why shouldn't we take it together?
Gentle Maid (innocently)—Possibly your wife and my husband might object to going in such a crowd.
Gallant Man (brilliantly)—The crowd wouldn't be objectionably large if your husband and my wife were husband and wife.
 (Further conversation was disjointed and indistinct).

Where Animals Beat Men.
 "Nature faking aside," said the zoo keeper, "mice won't eat oleo. It is a fact. Lay a pat of oleo and a pat of butter side by side and in the morning the butter will be gone, but the oleo will remain untouched.
 "Oh, yes, some animals are incredibly nice about their food. The otter, when living wild, will only eat one piece, one mouthful out of each fish he catches. He will land a beautiful trout, but only one bite of it from the back, just behind the neck, is good enough for him. The rest he tosses aside. This epicure often kills a dozen fine, big trout to make one meal.
 "Chimpanzees have very delicate tastes. A banana or a pineapple that to you seems delicious to a chimpanzee may be revolting. His taste is keener. Grapes grown in hothouses where sulphur fumes are used as an insecticide taste all right to a man, but a chimpanzee will have none of them.
 "The ichneumon loves eggs. He can tell a fresh from a stale one simply by tapping the shell."

"Copy Reading" Howells.
 The London Athenaeum says of the following Howells paragraph that it is the best sentence perhaps in any recent English book. Describing a certain ancient edifice, Mr. Howells writes and the Athenaeum quotes:
 "What, in the heart of all this blossoming, was the great cathedral itself when we came in sight of it but a vast efflorescence of the age of faith, mystically beautiful in form and gray as some pale exhalation from the mold of the ever cloistered, the deeply reforested past."
 "Very fine, all must admit. But wouldn't that paragraph have been meat and drink to the man who used to mark up Mr. Howells' newspaper copy back at Bucyrus, O. If Howells the reporter had written that for the Bucyrus Blade he would have found it in the paper next day about like this:
 "The cathedral, with flowers all around it, looks fine. It is 400 years old and needs paint."

Thought Nine Enough.
 The following amusing birth notice appeared in the Dresden Anzeiger: "To our seven hearty boys there came today, in God's early morning, not the wished for little daughter, but, in compensation, a pair of fine boys. We judge by this elementary event that these strenuous times demand more men than blossoms of the gentler sex, and console ourselves with thoughts of our fatherland, to which we call."

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments. The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

"ALL DEALERS"

Her Purse and His Handkerchief.
 "The thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts." The other day a young woman who had dropped her purse, full of pay money for the corps of girls under her charge, considered the thoughts of youth to be rather too "long."
 She was in one of the large department stores, and as her hands were occupied she let her purse lie for a few moments where it had fallen. But her eye was on it. In the meantime a bright little fellow not more than nine or ten years old left his parents near by and deftly covered the purse with a handkerchief.
 The woman, who is a perfectly self possessed young person, could hardly believe her eyes, but she waited to see what the boy would do. Just as he was stooping to his prize she placed her foot quietly upon it. The youngster slipped back without a word to the well dressed "respectable" people with whom he was.
 Then the woman picked up her purse and, taking the handkerchief over to the lad, handed it to him, saying, "There is no reason why you should lose your handkerchief just because you didn't get my purse!"

Sealed Orders.

The custom of having warships sail under sealed orders arose from the desire of maritime powers to prevent the plans from becoming known to the enemy. In the American navy such orders come from the president and are delivered to a commander of a ship or squadron by a confidential messenger who knows nothing of their contents. Sometimes they are in cipher, but they are always sealed with the official seal of the navy department and the package cannot be opened until the time marked on it, which is usually several hours after the hour of leaving port. By this precaution the newspapers are prevented from disclosing prematurely the movements which may be of the greatest importance, and the spies of the enemy are rendered useless so far as their ability to discover the secret of such movements is concerned. Sailing under sealed orders is now the common naval practice in time of war. These instructions are found in the packet of sealed orders, which is opened when well out at sea.

A Runaway River.

The problem and the peril of the Colorado river are not difficult to understand. A great river running slowly on a ridge of its own creating, running in a broad and tortuous channel, choked with islands of mud and bars of sediment, running with a fall of

He Saw the Game.
 The office boy had buried countless grandmothers, brothers, sisters, aunts and cousins, but he felt an enthusiasm for the baseball game that day which would not be downed.
 Suddenly an idea struck him. Approaching the easy boss with an air of familiarity which had been nurtured by long usage he asked:
 "May I leave at noon today, sir?"
 "And why, my boy?"
 "There is a fancy fair at our church and mother wants me to go this afternoon. She was so anxious that she bought me a ticket which cost a dollar, as she was sure you would allow me the few hours off. I have to assist at the refreshment stall, and it seems a pity to waste"—
 "But surely you are above such things as that which take you away from your work. Why not give the ticket to one of your sisters?"
 "Well, you see, sir, that wouldn't be fair, for I'm the only one of our family who can be depended upon to eat a dollar's worth, and"—
 His supreme nerve won the day.

An English Amenity.

A striking difference between our manners and those of our English cousins was shown one day at a garden party. The hostess, an American, was speaking to one of her guests, an Englishwoman of rank.
 "Dear Lady B.," she said, "here are some sandwiches which I made with my own hands, particularly for you. You know I've often told you about our American sandwiches and how good they are. Here are different sorts, lettuce and cucumbers, if you care for 'grass,' or if you like a savory better try the cream cheese ones with pimientos. I've some sweet ones, too, raisins and nuts chopped together—which will you try first?"
 She held a plate in each hand, a plate filled with dainty looking sandwiches, and they were extended invitingly toward her guest, who looked at them critically, then said in the clear, high pitched voice of the well bred Englishwoman:
 "Oh, thank you, so kind of you, but do you know I never touch the nawsty things?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chance For a Home Run.

A clever teacher who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils says that she would have no use for text books if she took time to answer all the startling questions asked in the classroom. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion when one of the boys said that he didn't see any need of it, anyway.
 "It seems to me," said he, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell and made Newton think out the reason for it, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was until somebody gathered it."
 "You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher. "Well, suppose you knock the ball very high, what happens?"
 "It falls."
 "But if there were no attraction toward the earth, it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?"
 "My," cried the boy, "what a bully chance for a home run!"

Her Supposition.

In the Beecher family the name of Mrs. Stowe was often quoted to the rising generation as one having authority. She was also quoted ad nauseam, it would seem, from a story told by the Woman's Journal. On one occasion a grandniece of Mrs. Stowe became very angry at a playmate and, stamping her foot, said, "I hate you,

Jack Tar at a Christening.
 A sailor went up to the font to have his baby baptized. Sailors as a class claim little stock in babies, and naturally enough this one presented the infant feet foremost.
 "The other way," said the minister, and accordingly Jack turned the infant upside down.
 "Excuse me," said the clergyman, "I mean the other way." So back came the embryo foretopman to the first position, to the discouragement of everybody.
 "Wind it, Jack," said the nautical

"Hurrah! Hurrah! Now there are nine. Firm stand and true the watch on the Rhine!"

"To all dear friends and acquaintances and to whom else the joyous tidings may be of interest we give this notice—the last of its kind—Eduard Rost and wife."

A Bargain.

Mr. Mason rubbed the edges of the umbrella with discriminating fingers while his wife listened to the saleswoman's enumeration of its good points.

"This is $10, isn't it?" he asked. "Oh, no," replied the saleswoman reproachfully. "It is $9.89."

"She seems to regard the 11 cents as particularly invidious. I wonder why?" whispered Mr. Mason to his wife.

"Not at all," said Mrs. Mason, with mild heat; "nothing 'invidious' about it. Only very naturally it touched the girl not to have you perceive that you were getting a bargain."

The commercial traveler flicked the dust off his boots, straightened his tie and entered the emporium of Mr. Brown, the village grocer. He was new to the district, otherwise he would not have made the error which we now divulge.

Behind the counter was a young gentleman of fourteen, with bulging eyes and a high collar. To him the traveler addressed himself.

"My boy," he said, "is Mr. Brown in?"

"I'm Mr. Brown," the boy replied. "But possibly you want to see old Mr. Brown, my father. I'll get him."

And as the boy went in search of his prematurely aged parent it dawned upon the traveler that this is indeed an age of young men.—London Answers.

Ideals.

He kissed her hand. She withdrew it hastily and gazed reproachfully at him.

"I didn't think it of you," she said, almost tearfully. "I had always considered you a young man with ideals, and!"

"I—I am sorry if I have offended," he stammered. "I—"

"Well," she said bitterly, "I certainly expected you to aim higher."

So he took heart and made new resolutions and things.

Safe.

Mrs. Smith—Yes, my little five-year-old girl is a great help in my house-keeping. Mrs. Randall—Why, what can such a child do to help? Mrs. Smith—She goes down and tells the cook for me whenever we're going to have company.

Delicately Put.

He would not say that she painted, powdered and all that. He was too much of a gentleman for that.

"Still I may as well confess," he said, "that she impressed me as one who thinks she can improve upon the Lord's handiwork."

The Plagiarist.

"Father," said Rollo, "what is a plagiarist?"

"A plagiarist, my son, is a kleptomaniac who lacks the courage to take anything which the police could be called on to protect."

A man can know nothing of mankind without knowing something of himself.—Beaconsfield.

radio river are not difficult to understand. A great river running slowly on a ridge of its own creating, running in a broad and tortuous channel, choked with islands of mud and bars of sediment, running with a fall of only one foot to the mile, while to the north and west lay a vast depression below sea level and inviting the sluggish river to a swifter flow; between this sunken area and the uncertain course of the river a great garden of Eden in promise and potency, needing only to be watered and kept, then a canal tapping the river, a flood gathering at the far away sources, a breach in the unprotected bank and the whole volume of the river, forsaking its ancient and outgrown bed and rushing into that pit in the desert, sweeping in its course through miles of fertile farms and cutting canyons where canals had been—this is an outline of the situation and a hint of the peril.—A. J. Wells in Sunset Magazine.

The Dean's Raiment.

Dean Stanley was once driving with a friend from Monreale to Palermo. Both men were reading. Stanley suddenly discovered that he was shivering with a cold. He mentioned the matter to his friend.

"Well, hadn't you better put something on?" said the latter, pointing to the dean's bag, which was close at hand.

Stanley thought it rather a good idea, and the friend went on reading. As they entered Palermo there were shouts of astonishment. Stanley was placidly reading. His friend found that the distinguished churchman had absentmindedly drawn out a night-shirt from his bag and put it on over his other clothing and thus arrayed was riding triumphantly into the city.—London Sketch.

The Earth's Shadow.

The earth has a shadow, but very few ever see it, except in eclipses of the moon, or else few recognize it when they see it. Nevertheless, many of us have noticed on fine, cloudless evenings in summer shortly before sunset a rosy pink arc on the horizon opposite the sun, with a bluish gray segment under it. As the sun sinks the arc rises until it attains the zenith and even passes it. This is the shadow of the earth.

Knew His Capacity.

Stranger (to waiter)—Isn't that man named Meier who is paying his bill over there?

Waiter—I don't know. I haven't been long here.

S.—What has he had?

W.—Ten glasses of beer and a bottle of wine.

S.—Oh, yes; it is he then.—Paris Rire.

Two Failures.

"I married for beauty alone," said a presumably happy benedict to an old chum. "And yet you remind me of a friend of mine who married for money," was the rejoinder. "How's that?" "He didn't get it," said the chum sarcastically.

Sarcastic.

His Wife—You have been drinking again. Haven't you, now? Her Husband—M'dear, I cannot tell a lie—His Wife—You can't! Then you are further gone than I thought!

A pessimist is a man who won't take the one remaining seat in the car for fear a woman will get on at the next corner.

mority. She was also quoted as nauseam, it would seem, from a story told by the Woman's Journal. On one occasion a grandniece of Mrs. Stowe became very angry at a playmate and, stamping her foot, said, "I hate you, and I don't want anything more to do with you, nor your manservant, nor your maidservant, nor your ox, nor your ass." Her mother sternly reproved her, asking her if she knew what she was saying.

Little Miss Beecher promptly replied, "Yes; the Ten Commandments."

"Well, do you know who wrote them?"

The child, looking disgusted, answered: "Goodness, yes. Aunt Harriet did, I s'pose."

The Word "Poultry."

Poultry, according to the definition given in one standard encyclopedia, includes "the whole of the domesticated birds reclaimed by man for the sake of their flesh and their eggs." The word comes from the Latin "pullus," which could mean a young horse or donkey as well as a chick (the English "foal" is akin to this), through the French "poule," a fowl. But it is curious that "poultry" has no French version, the nearest equivalent being "volaille," or "oiseaux de basse cour," birds of the low yard. German in its descriptive way knows poultry as "federvieh," feather cattle.

An Unmentioned Ancestor.

Mr. B. is very proud of his ancient lineage and never lets slip an opportunity to boast of it. At a dinner where he had been unusually rampant on this subject a fellow guest quieted him by remarking, "If you climb much further up your family tree you will come face to face with the monkey."—Lippincott's.

A Piece-Conferee.

Russian Bear—I think we had better have our representatives sit in convention and do what we have long contemplated—divide up Turkey. British Lion—Yes; in other words, hold another piece-conferee.

His Big Score.

Beginner at Golf—How many have I taken, my boy? Is it fifteen or sixteen? Disgusted Caddie—Ach, I dinna ken. It's no a caddie ye need; it's a billiard marker.

"Excuse me," said the clergyman, "I mean the other way." So back came the embryo foretopman to the first position, to the discouragement of everybody.

"Wind it, Jack," said the nautical assistant, and with an "Aye, aye, sir," Jack promptly turned the baby end for end, and it was duly christened head first.—"On a Man-of-war."

The Alternative.

The Count—Doctor, I have such a fearfully bad cough. What can I do for it? Doctor—Well, sir, you must remember that you are no longer in your first youth and you must take care of your general health. So you had better leave off smoking; take no alcohol in any form and do not excite yourself in any way; do not—The Count—The mischief, doctor; what am I to do then? Nothing but cough?—Lustige Blätter.

The Virginia Plover.

The most wonderful bird flight noted is the migratory achievement of the Virginia plover, which leaves its haunts in North America and, taking a course down the Atlantic, reaches the coast of Brazil in one unbroken flight of fifteen hours, covering a distance of over 3,000 miles at the rate of four miles a minute.

Condensed.

"Here is an article on 'How to Live a Hundred Years.'"

"Yes, and the whole subject can be condensed into two words."

"What are they?"

"Don't die."

Not the Music He Loved.

Mrs. Talkamore—Your husband is a great lover of music, isn't he? Mrs. Chatters—Yes, indeed, I have seen him get up in the middle of the night and try to compose. Mrs. T.—What? Mrs. C.—The baby.

Well Named.

"This is the parlor, eh?" tentatively remarked the real estate agent, who was looking over the house.

"Yes," replied the old man Kidder, "but I usually call it the courtroom. I've got seven daughters, you know."

If you make money your god, 'twill plague you like a devil.—Fielding.

Deed of a Gallant Nobody.

It is not always the information carried by the recognized aids-de-camp to and from the commanding officer in battle which is of highest value. There was a supreme moment during the battle of Waterloo when the Duke of Wellington was left absolutely alone, and that not when he was running the risk of capture by sailing through the enemy's lines. It simply meant that every galloper had gone his way, each with his message. At this moment a stranger rode up to the duke and quietly asked, "Can I be of any use, sir?" The duke took one glance at him and unhesitatingly answered, "Yes, take this pencil note to the commanding officer," pointing to a regiment in the heat of the battle. The stranger took the note and galloped away with it through the thick of the fight. He delivered it, but what happened to him no man knows. The duke always declared that to be one of the most gallant deeds that had ever come under his notice. It was done without prospect of acknowledgment or reward, and neither attended its successful accomplishment.—London Standard.

How Chicago Is Spelled.

In sorting over the letters for Chicago a man in the general Chicago office has kept an account of the number of different ways the word Chicago is spelled. Recently the record showed 197 different ways. Some ripe scholar in Finland sent a letter to his brother and spelled the name of the Garden City, Zizzazo. Still another foreigner, possibly with a sinister motive, spelled the word Jagjago. Hipaho, Jajijo, Scheechacho, Hizage and Chachicho are also prime favorites.

He Found It.

"I meant to have told you of that hole," said the kindly host to his friend, who had suddenly disappeared, in the course of a stroll through the grounds into a pit full of water. The friend climbed out and shook himself. "It doesn't matter," he said cheerily. "I found it!"—London Globe.

Wonders of Baalbec.

Baalbec, or Baalbek, is the name given a ruined city lying in ancient Coele-Syria, forty-five miles northwest of Damascus. There is nothing particularly remarkable about a ruined city being found in the locality mentioned, but the size of the blocks of stone used by the ancient builders of this particular city is something that has puzzled the modern engineers since the day when Baalbec was first made the Mecca of the oriental traveler. There are immense stones on every side of the visitor to this ancient pile of ruins, but the three most remarkable blocks—said to be the largest ever used in the construction of a building—are in a wall back of the temple of Baal. These immense stones are respectively sixty-four, sixty-three and sixty-two feet in length and each is thirteen feet in thickness, but the most wonderful thing in connection with them is the fact that they are at a place in the wall twenty-five feet from the ground. How these immense blocks of granite were ever raised to such a height is a question that has never yet been answered.

The negroes of Connecticut were formerly accustomed to elect a governor for themselves. "Negro election," as it was called, generally took place on the Saturday following the election day of the whites. Just what the negro-governor's duties and privileges were does not appear. At all events, he was respected as "gubernator" by the negroes throughout the

POLITICAL NEWS!

Issue Fairly Before People.

The public mind has grasped the inexorable historical fact that the Conservative party during the time it was in power, was a party of inefficiency, dishonesty and extravagance. It has recently been demonstrated to the people of Canada that this same discredited and dishonored party now seeks to return to office by accusing political opponents of the same crimes for which it suffered loss of public confidence.

The issue therefore, is fairly before the people. It resolves itself into a plain, simple proposition, easily understandable. Shall the government of Canada be handed over to a political party which was removed from power in consequence of years of misrule, flagrant political corruption and reckless looting of public money?

The second consideration is, shall the Conservative party attain power by denouncing the Liberal party without proof, with little reason, and accusing its members of crimes of which the Tory party was guilty?

There surely must be some more clearly defined reason than this before 60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL! The Company's Guarantee.

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself.

The eminent Dr. I. N. LOVE, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles, their roots, without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved.

Dr. W. MOORE, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the Evans Vacuum Cap is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

our proof, with little reason, and accusing its members of crimes of which the Tory party was guilty? There surely must be some more clearly defined reason than this before the electors of Canada will dispense with the services of a government that in eleven years has done more for Canada than their predecessors did in the previous eighteen years.

Borden's Platform Unpopular. It is true that Mr. Borden has evolved a platform, but this platform is not subscribed to by the Conservative party throughout the Dominion. What may be satisfactory to some of the people of the East, is not welcome in the west, and already Mr. Borden has been notified by Western Conservatives that the platform is not satisfactory to them.

spending $5,000.00 this month to what the word "Constipation" means.

Constipation means NON-ACTION OF THE BOWELS. If the liver is healthy, it pours enough bile into the intestines so the bowels move. Then, too, the bowels discharge waste from the body by a peculiar snake-like movement. This is strong muscles.

If the bowel muscles are weak—when there is not enough bile—the bowels do not move for two, three, sometimes five days.

Non-action of the bowels is Constipation. Waste matter, which would leave the body, is taken up by the blood, and the kidneys and skin. These organs—in a vain effort to throw off the poisons—are overworked. The blood, in turn, irritates the nerves, causing Headaches—Neuralgia.

Weakened kidneys cannot rid the system of urea, which causes uric acid, causing Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago. It is useless to try to cure Constipation with calomel, cascara, or strong purgative pills and vile-tasting mineral waters. They only force the bowels to act by irritating the delicate tissues. Their action weakens the muscles and really does more harm than good.

forms, and promises of legislation which are not desired by an influential section of its own members.

Curious Spectacle Presented.

The spectacle is presented of a party denouncing its political opponents for using their positions for their own interests, and without regard to the public good, when some of its most prominent members have scarcely emerged from public denunciation in the House of Commons, and on the public platform for using their position as members of the House to their own personal advantage and to the detriment of the people whose representatives they are.

The plea made by Mr. Borden to the Canadian people is, that there must be purity in public life. He bases his claim for recognition and support upon the pronouncement that men who have used their positions as members of Parliament to advance their own interests are not fit and proper persons to occupy exalted positions of trust, or legislate in the Parliament of Canada. He reiterates his condemnation of a party that accepts money for campaign purposes, and huris diatribes of abuse at any man who dares relate historical facts reflecting upon the Conservative party.

and the Emperor of Japan. Canada thus came within the scope of a treaty made between Her late Majesty Queen Victoria and the Emperor of Japan in 1904, and subsequently amended. Canada was expressly exempted from the treaty originally, but after the success of Canada at the Tokio exhibition, it demonstrated that such an opening offered for growth of commercial relations between Canada and Japan, that a new treaty was made, the terms of which gave to Canada the advantage of the most favored nation clause. This treaty was adopted by the Canadian Parliament.

Borden Approved Jap Treaty.

When the bill was before the House in January of this year adopting the treaty and binding Canada to it, what was the attitude of the Conservative party in the House? Mr. Borden delivered himself of the following:—

Mr. R. L. Borden—What is the value of the yet?

To this Sir Wilfrid replied, 50 cents. Mr. R. L. Borden—I do not observe any mention of grain or flour.

Sir Wilfrid explained that all nations were on the same footing in this respect.

The above was the contribution of Mr. Borden to the debate when the Neither has he taken the people into his confidence with respect to the uses to which $5,000 a year for five years would be put to redeem a Nova Scotia constituency.

Promises Made to Ontario.

In Ontario the electors are promised government control of large undertakings, such as telegraphs and telephones, so that the patronage of coming Conservative members will be increased ten fold. The farmers are to have free delivery of their letters, and the millennium is to arrive when the Conservative party resumes power. In British Columbia solemn compacts to which Mr. Borden himself was a consenting party, are to be violated, and the doors are to be thrown wide open for all the provinces to demand increased subsidies, to which British Columbia will have to contribute a full share.

This is the quality of statesmanship exhibited by the leader of a party, seeking the premiership. Into the hands of this palimpsest politician Canadians are asked to entrust their affairs. The future of Canada is to be in the hands of those who have proved false to lesser trusts, than the ones which would be theirs to guard should a change of government be made.

Will Rehash Dead Scandals.

When in the course of his political tour Mr. Borden reaches the Middle West, the people will be regaled with scandals, which received their death blow in the House—that part of the story however, will not be told. For a man who bases his claim to public confidence upon the allegation that the people are not being honestly dealt with by the government, Mr. Borden exposes himself to very caustic criticism. The scandals he will exploit and rehash in the Middle West, have exhaustively explained in the House, and the Opposition dropped them one by one after they had gone the round of the Tory press. In each instance the charge alone was published by the Opposition press, the complete answer of the government was never given. Mr. Borden may be expected to follow the same method during his campaign—he will make his charge, but the people will be kept in ignorance of the explanation or answer given upon the floor of parliament. To all intents and purposes he will make it appear that the administration stands charged with serious offences and that no explanation was made. This policy will be pursued by the man who says he stands for uprightness and probity in public men. When Manitoba is reached much will be said about the "thin red line," but the complete answer made by Mr. Crawford will form no part of Mr. Borden's address.

All Things to All Men.

Political methods vary little. Mr. Borden will be all things to all men, he will adopt himself to his conditions. Every advantage will be taken of provincial and local difficulties, and all the blame for anything in respect of which may be some local feeling, will be placed upon the Dominion Government. The people will listen in vain for the good things accomplished by the Laurier government: since 1896. Nothing will be said about the prosperous condition of the country, excepting that the administration has had nothing to do with it. There will be no allusion to the intelligent immigration policy pursued by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government for ten years, which has resulted in peopling the West with an enterprising population credit on for the rapid settlement of the country will not be given where it is due, but there will be some polemics about a better class of immigration for which bonus should be paid, while in

"Among the many ailments which developed was a serious attack of catarrh, which annoyed me considerably and kept me awake whole nights.

"I decided to give Peruna a trial and soon found it acting as a wonderful tonic to my system. The catarrh grew less severe and shortly afterward disappeared, as did also the various other maladies.

"I attribute my prompt relief and ultimate cure entirely to the use of Peruna and gladly recommend it."

It is said that a farmer gets the best work out of a farm hand who is aspiring to be his son-in-law.

Perhaps one reason why a poor man lives longer than a rich one is that the doctors don't take so much interest in him.

If you have faults the idea is not to humiliate yourself by acknowledging them to your enemies, but to get over them if possible for your own good.

Great Men.

It is a matter of common observation that at the passing of the great men of each generation there is a pessimistic feeling prevalent that "there were giants in these days." But the feeling to legislate a peace pact, to legislate in the Parliament of Canada. He reiterates his condemnation of a party that accepts money for campaign purposes, and huris diatribes of abuse at any man who dares relate historical facts reflecting upon the Conservative party.

Can Borden Reconcile This?

This being the case, and the electors understand it well, how can Mr. Borden reconcile his views and accept as members of this party Messrs. Foster, Fowler and Lefurgy? As to the former, he has been engaged in diverting public attention from the fact that he, himself, is the object of a damning report made by a Royal Commission. The people may well doubt the sincerity of the leader of the Opposition, when he accepts the services of a man who has been exposed to the people of Canada, on his own evidence, as the receiver of rakes-off, and the beneficiary of irregular commissions when dealing with trust funds.

Retains Discredited Supporters.

How much importance will the people of Canada attach to the accusations of the leader of the Opposition, when he retains as his faithful followers, Messrs. Fowler and Lefurgy, who, while members of Parliament, made a dicker with one corporation for the purchase of land, and with the representatives of another for financial assistance to carry the deal through?

Borden's Insincerity Apparent.

Is it not consistent to doubt the sincerity of a man who pleads for political purity, and at the same time accepts the support of men, who, by virtue of their membership in the House, were enabled to make large profits from those who seek votes on important legislative enactments?

Will the people of Canada make an exchange of Hon. Mr. Fielding, the finance minister, who has presented a surplus every year since he assumed office, (in the aggregate nearly one hundred millions), for Mr. Foster, the man who ran the country into debt, and piled up deficits year by year?

Would the people of Canada be content to place the financial business of this great Dominion in the hands of a man who stands before the country, condemned by a Royal Commission, and condemned in such terms as would influence any other person, not endowed with a pachydermatous conscience, to retire from public life?

His That Would Happen.

The elevation of Mr. Borden to the premiership means that Geo. E. Foster of I O O. F. fame be finance minister. The success of the Conservative party means that the hero of the nest of traitors, the man who wants to borrow money for public purposes, would hold the purse strings. The advent of the Tories to power would mean that all the statesmanship, the building up of the past eleven years, would be destroyed in a day.

Borden as an Opportunist.

Mr. Borden has opened his campaign in British Columbia, and seizes at once on the regrettable incidents of the past few weeks. He goes to the length of adding a plank to his platform dealing with principles which directly attack the very foundation of the constitution, and which no party could enforce without drastic amendments to the British North America Act.

Alluding to the treaty with Japan, Mr. Borden said:—

"The Government has taken great responsibility in imposing upon the people a treaty which must be observed until it is abrogated."

What was the treaty? The Canadian parliament passed a bill giving force of law in Canada to a certain treaty of amity and commerce recently made between His Majesty the King and To this Sir Wilfrid replied, 30 cents. Mr. R. L. Borden—I do not observe any mention of grain or flour.

Sir Wilfrid explained that all nations were on the same footing in this respect.

The above was the contribution of Mr. Borden to the debate when the treaty was being adopted by parliament. At Vancouver Mr. Borden says:—"but Canada made that treaty with all knowledge of the consequences—Did the Liberal members from British Columbia protest?"

The reply is that the only protest came from a British Columbia representative, while Mr. Borden contented himself with the truncated brilliance given above verbatim—See Hansard, Jan. 15, 1907, p. 1547.

If the Conservative party was in any manner solicitous for the welfare of British Columbia, the time to enter a vigorous protest against the treaty, was when the treaty was being discussed in the House, not seek to make political capital from the incident and suggest that the remedy lay in an amendment to the constitution which would take probably years to enact.

Offers Money Bribe for Support.

Mr. Borden also pledged himself in the event of Conservative success, "to appoint a commission to deal with the question of better conditions for British Columbia, with the view of granting such additional allowance as the commission might recommend."

All of this sounds good to the expectant Tories, but what of the other Provinces? If the question of Provincial subsidies can be opened for one Province, it can be opened for all of them. This reckless system of promising reminds one of the lines:

"When the devil was sick, the devil a saint will be—

When the devil was well, the devil a saint was he."

Who Got That $30 000.

At Halifax Mr. Borden exhorted the faithful to fight any influence that favors corrupt methods, but he has not yet explained what became of the $30 000 contributed to the Conservative party by the proprietor of the Montreal Star, who was to place the money so that it could not be traced—which has resulted in peopling the West with an enterprising population credit on for the rapid settlement of the country will not be given where it is due, but there will be some polemics about a better class of immigration for which bonus should be paid, while in the East the leader of the Opposition finds himself opposed to the system altogether.

Left Speculators Behind.

The rapid growth of the West since the leader of the Opposition made his last visit, will be alluded to, but the important part the government of the day played in this advancement will not be recognized—the leader of the Opposition will of course make mention of land scandals, but he will probably omit to explain the absence of his friends, who accompanied him on the occasion of his last trip and who profited so greatly at the expense of the settler, neither will he go into the particulars of the Royal Commissions report dealing with the actions of these same thrifty politicians with respect to these same shady transactions.

Will Only Tell One Side.

Mr. Borden will no doubt tell a good story, but only one side of it, the other side is a matter of record and will be told in due course. When he expatiates on the doings of Liberal politicians and enlarges on the awful consequences of political corruption as affecting the future of this great Dominion, he may forget to mention that his own election petition at Halifax, in which corruption is charged, has not yet been adjudicated upon.

Blow for Blow in Future.

The Liberal party has been very generous in many ways to their political opponents, but in future the strenuous lead of Hon. Mr. Aylesworth will be followed, and if these Conservative gentlemen of lofty ideals and immaculate purity of character undertake to enter the arena, for they will most assuredly be given.

Present Men.

It is a matter of common observation that at the passing of the great men of each generation there is a pessimistic feeling prevalent that "there were giants in those days." But the feeling has never had any warrant in the actual deficiencies of the oncoming generations. Orators have come and gone, and statesmen have come and gone, and sometimes their immediate successors have not been discernible. But in time the men have emerged who have taken their places and who have improved upon the patterns they left.

Trades That Kill.

One of the most dangerous of trades, according to the Pilgrim, "is the covering of toy animals with skin, chamois leather being used, for instance, for the elephants, calfskin for the horse and goatskin for the camels. This covering must of course fit without a wrinkle to look natural, so the wooden model is first dipped into glue, then sprinkled with chalk dust; then the skin is put on. The chalk is so fine that it fills the air and is drawn into the throat and lungs. A year of this sort of work often results in death.

Another very injurious toy is the rubber balloon. The fumes and solvents used in reducing sheet rubber to the necessary thinness while retaining its strength and the dyeing of the brilliant yellows, greens and purple are most of them poisonous.

THE TRUE PEACEMAKER

People Whose Presence Is Always Like Oil on Troubled Waters.

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God."—Matt. v., 9.

How simple are the gateways that open into the most sublime moral and spiritual privileges. The great teacher says that if any would be known as the children of the Eternal they have but to learn to be peacemakers among their fellows. The ordinary virtues commonly are the conditions of the extraordinary beautitudes.

If the teacher meant by peace quietness, indifference, ease, and sleep there was a time when the people of the church might well lay claim to being called the children of God; they were at peace with their own selves and willing to be at peace with the world if only they might continue to sleep undisturbed.

There are those who conceive of no other peacemakers than those who arbitrate between warring nations. If these are the only children of God the family is a small and by no means a homogenous one. You may have little to do with the good work of disarmament and still be a true peacemaker as you bring to human conditions and relations greater calm and more perfect harmony.

They are peacemakers who have the spirit of the family of the greater Father in their hearts, who bring men together in these

DIVINE FAMILY TIES.

There never will be harmony amongst men by means of laws or agreements; one thing only will bring it—the spread of the spirit of brotherhood.

When a man begins to order his life for the helping of other lives, when he no longer plans to beat his fellows, but to bless the race, he becomes the servant of divine peace; he catches the spirit of the coming kingdom based on the universal brotherhood.

There are people whose lives breathe out calm, whose presence is always like oil on troubled waters. There are others who never fail to stir up strife, who have a faculty for accentuating antagonisms and for setting folks by the ears. The one looks out on life with eyes of love, with a desire to help, and promote good feeling; the other with cupidity and enmity.

We need men and women who by their bearing and conduct will promote good feeling and friendliness a good deal more than we need laws for the banishing of weapons and plans of war. The finest peacemakers in this world are the plain men and women who help us to like other folk and live with them.

Whoever, in any way, succeeds in taking any of the friction and unrest out of life is a peacemaker. The kingdom of heaven that is coming will be the kingdom of perfect harmony; it will come when humanity learns the great lesson that all this experience of pain and joy should be teaching us, the lesson of living at peace and in love with our brothers.

Fair words about fraternity easily are spoken and soon forgotten; it is a good deal easier to preach peace than it is to practice it. Its day never will come so long as the chief concern of each life is to get ahead of every other life. It never will come until we fully see that Jesus meant something more than a pretty figure of speech when he talked of the divine fatherhood and

THE HUMAN BROTHERHOOD.

Why should there not be the same harmony amongst all men that there is in a family? Homes are enriched and the chief joys of our lives found by the process of ceasing to live for our individual selves and living for the social group.

Some day we will open our eyes to see the waste, the loss and pain and discord caused by our individualism. We shall see fully what we now but dimly apprehend—that the real riches, the lasting joys, the enduring prosperity of life spring from the things we have done for others without thought of ourselves.

So long as each is wholly for himself there will be conflict, discord, and pain; when each shall live for all, then all will be working for one common end, the race rather than the man, then all will move in harmony, peace will have her perfect work and all will be known as one family, the children of God.

The Reforms of Lord Kitchener Met With Disapproval Among the Natives.

For some little time, cablegrams have appeared in the press telling of riots and disturbances in different parts of India, and recently the news was received from England that the British Government were about to establish an elected Imperial Council and elected local councils.

India is almost a sealed book to the bulk of Englishmen, and perhaps even more so to the inhabitants of Canada, whose energies are naturally principally engrossed in developing their own magnificent country. The disquieting cables received during the past few months are, however, awakening an interest in this country and peoples of India, and the average Canadian is obliged to confess to himself that, beyond associating India in his mind with heat, rajahs, nautch-girls, elephants and tigers he knows nothing of it, although he cannot but feel a secret pride in being a member of a race of whom 150,000 (75,000 military and 75,000 civil) control and govern three hundred millions—one in two thousand.

This ignorance of a country that is situated half-way round the world and is in almost everything the extreme antithesis of Canada, is not surprising. (Cable to the seal of the Government for five months in the year for seven months it is removed to Simla, 2,000 miles away, on the snow-clad Himalayas), is over 12,000 miles travelling from Toronto, and India—unlike Canada, practically an independent country, connected with England in little more than sentiment—is a dependency of possession of Great Britain since conquered by Clive a century and a half ago. The area of India is less than half that of Canada, but the last census showed population of 295,000,000, or nearly fifty times that of this country, and over a hundred times as dense. It is easy, of course, to speak glibly of three hundred millions until the population of the entire world is estimated at little more than 1,500,000,000, so that India contains nearly one-fifth of the entire human race and that those three hundred millions form nearly three-quarters of the population of the vast British Empire—Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, Ceylon, and the millions in Africa, who owe allegiance to King Edward.

GREAT MANY TONGUES.

Canada has—practically but two tongues—India has 147 vernacular languages of extraordinary variety. Canadians can fairly claim to be one of the most progressive nations of the world—the civilization and manner of thought of the great mass of the people of India probably does not differ greatly from that of the time of the invasion of India by Alexander the Great.

India has no constitution and no Parliament. The supreme authority, both executive and legislative, is vested in the Governor-General in Council. The Council is composed of six members, appointed by the British Crown, and is an advisory council only—the Governor-General having power to overrule the Council. He is, however, responsible to the Secretary of State for India, who is a member of the British Cabinet, which is responsible to the House of Commons, which is controlled by the people, who, in their turn, are controlled, according to one of Capt. Marryat's heroes, by the printers and their devils.

The councils that the Government of India now propose to establish, both Imperial and local, are only advisory councils—the former apparently to advise the Viceroy or Governor-General, and the latter to advise the Governors of the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, and the Lieutenant-Governors of ed, have made discontent in the native army. Perhaps, too, the larger number of Europeans now engaged in factory workshops are indirectly a cause of the passing prestige of the Sahib—familiarity proverbially breeding contempt. Perhaps the missionaries in well-meaning efforts to spread the gospel of the "First Great Socialist" have a disturbing effect upon a people who have always been religiously conservative and accustomed for centuries to autocratic government. Whatever may be the causes, the discontent and dissatisfaction are there amongst the town dwellers.

The ordinary ryots, or peasants, who form the greater bulk of India's millions have no interests outside the little plots on which they grow their rice, and time alone can show how this restlessness can be allayed—in the words of Tennyson: "The old order changeth, yielding place to new." The people gave self government to the Boers, after a three years' war and huge expenditure of blood and money are the last to refuse self government to others, but although the natives of India have their full share of virtues yet their insurmountable distrust of each other and the fact that, among their abilities, powers of organization and administration are conspicuous by their absence would appear to militate against their ever being eligible for self-government.

THE PRINCE AT OSBORNE

DAILY LIFE AT THE GREAT BRITISH NAVAL ACADEMY.

Course is Designed to Train Strong, Intelligent Men to Officer England's Navy.

A new term at the Royal Navy College at Osborne will begin very soon, and Prince Edward and the other cadets will rejoin.

Osborne College consists of a series of bungalow buildings surrounding a quadrangle. The dormitories, which will hold from thirty to thirty-six boys, are named after great naval leaders, Hawke, Drake, Grenville, Collingwood and others, and the first term boys are all drafted into the same dormitories, with the result that the boys who are doing the same term's work are always kept together. Though of light construction, the buildings are composed of asbestos and other absolutely fireproof material. The school at full strength has accommodation for 410.

Life at Osborne, except that everything is specially adapted to the training of naval officers, is run very much on public school lines. The spirit of self-dependence, which is the secular or practical idea of the public school, is, of course, doubly necessary to the naval officer, and is, if possible, doubly encouraged, and the value of games is thoroughly realized. The cadets enter Osborne in their thirteenth year, and spend six terms, two years, before passing on to Dartmouth. During this period the lads are closely watched, and those that are found not quite suitable to the life are weeded out. About 7 per cent. have thus disqualified in the four years the school has been at work.

PRINCE EDWARD'S SCHOOL DAY.

This is the routine to which Prince Edward and his fellow-cadets all conform:

The day starts at half-past six with the "reveille," and the boys are allowed half an hour for baths and dressing, during which time hot cocoa and ship's biscuit are served in the mess-room.

The work of the day begins with either physical drill or study. Half of each dormitory do the one or the other on alternate mornings.

At ten minutes to eight breakfast is served and is followed by drill and prayers. At nine class work begins and continues with a short interval till one.

Lesson I. Joshua, Israel's New Leader.

Golden Text: Josh. 1, 5.

THE LESSON WORD STUDIES.

Based on the text of the Revised Version.

Purpose and Content of Joshua.—The book of Joshua forms the natural sequel to the Pentateuch. Without the account which it contains of the conquest and settlement of Canaan the narrative of the beginning of Hebrew national history would be incomplete. The arrangement of the Old Testament books in the Hebrew text places the book of Joshua at the beginning of a group of books designated "The Earlier Prophets," and comprising Joshua, Judges, the books of Samuel, and those of Kings. These books contain the history of the Israelites (1) during the period of conquest and immediately afterward; (2) during the

...be incomplete. The arrangement of the Old Testament books in the Hebrew text places the book of Joshua at the beginning of a group of books designated "The Earlier Prophets," and comprising Joshua, Judges, the books of Samuel, and those of Kings. These books contain the history of the Israelites (1) during the period of conquest and immediately afterward; (2) during the independent kingdom; (3) during the period of foreign invasions. The book of Joshua really forms the connecting link between the narrative of the Pentateuch and that of the books in this group of "earlier prophets." It was placed by the Jews with the latter rather than with the preceding books of "the law," probably because with very few exceptions (e. g. 20, 3-6, it contains no laws, and perhaps also because it was not associated with the name of the great law-giver, Moses, as were the five books of the Pentateuch. Modern scholars have, however, recognized the close relationship which the book bears to those which precede, and have suggested the regrouping of books which makes Joshua the last of the group of six sometimes spoken of as the Hexateuch. The book of Joshua falls naturally into three divisions: 1) The Conquest of Canaan (chapters 1-12); 2) The Distribution and Settlement of the Land (13-22); 3) Joshua's Farewell Addresses (23, 24). The first of these divisions traces the events of the historic narrative from the time that the Israelites left the east side of Jordan and entered the Land of Promise, until they were finally the actual masters of Canaan. The second group describes the territory assigned to the different tribes, while the last division contains two separate and in many respects different versions of Joshua's farewell address to the nation. Perhaps the most significant characteristic of the book of Joshua as a whole is the exalted vision which it unfolds of Jehovah's leadership of Israel through the mediumship of Joshua, to whom are vouchsafed successive communications of encouragement from Jehovah on the eve of his perilous campaign; a vision well fitted to remind those who are engaged in the work of the kingdom of God that they are sustained and helped in their work by unseen divine forces.

From Introductory Note to Lesson Word Studies for October 13.

After the death of Moses, the Israelites are still encamped in the land of Moab, east of the Jordan. In Deut. 34, 8, we are told that "in the thirtieth day of the month, after which it appears that Joshua took immediate command of all the administrative affairs of the nation."

Jehovah spoke. It is not necessary to think of an audible verbal communication from Jehovah to Joshua in this connection. Joshua had long been second in command as the assistant of Moses, and the situation naturally demanded that he take up immediately the reins of administration and proceed to carry out the plans of Moses, which were very familiar to him. His duty in reference to the work before him, and the best means of carrying it out, he was conscious that the work entrusted to him was placed upon him by Jehovah, and there was in him on his behalf and made by the Divine Spirit, a strong and overwhelming conviction that he should at once "arise" and "go over this Jordan," and lead the people of Israel into the land which Jehovah had promised them. God speaks to him today as truly and as clearly as he did to Joshua; yet we do not expect the faithful, verbal communication now, nor need we think of such a communication here. The language of that sacred historian is figurative and anthropomorphic does not detract from the value of his narrative nor make it any the less trustworthy. On the contrary, it adds much to its force, fineness and beauty and gives a new and more enduring meaning and value to this ancient record.

these boundaries, compare also the following references: Gen. 15, 18-21; Exod. 24, 31; Num. 34, 1-12.

The land of the Hittites—Northern Syria, extending westward into Asia Minor. The Hittites were neither Semites nor Aryans, but probably Mongolians, whom they resembled most nearly in physiognomy and dress. Their facial type is said still to persist in the peasantry of Cappadocia. Their most prosperous national period was about 1600-700 B.C., after which later date they were absorbed by the Assyrian empire.

5. As I was with Moses—The narrative is designed to impress upon the reader the sense that the continuity of the nation and of its high purpose was independent of, and not broken by, a change in the person of the leader.

I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee—A promise quoted by the author of the epistle to the Hebrews: "Be ye free from the love of money; content with such things as ye have; for himself hath said, I will in no wise fail thee, neither will I in any wise forsake thee" (Heb. 13, 5). Compare also Deut. 31, 6, 8; 1 Chron. 28, 20.

Observe to do according to all the law—The law is to be strictly and carefully observed if the great work to which Joshua has been called is to be successfully accomplished. He is to "read, mark, and inwardly digest" that law, and to carry out its provisions to the letter.

7. Have good success—Lit., "deal wisely."

9. Have not I commanded thee?—For similar emphasis on the personal leadership of Jehovah, compare Deut. 31, 7, 8, 23.

10. The officers—Hebrew, Shohrim, meaning 1) "writer" or "scribe"; 2) "overseer," an officer having charge of various duties, including enrollments, genealogies, etc.; 3) "magistrate." Both the civil and the military officers of the people are here referred to.

11. Victuals—Meaning in this connection, especially "provisions for a journey." The word also sometimes means "food got in hunting," though it is very frequently used of food of any kind. Compare the use of the word in Exod. 17, 39, "Neither had they prepared for themselves any victuals"; Judg. 7, 8, "the people took victuals in their hands and their trumpets"; 1 Sam. 22, 16, "And he inquired of Jehovah for him and gave him victuals."

Within three days—in Josh. 4, 19, we are told that on the tenth day of the month Nisan the actual crossing of the Jordan took place. The order here mentioned therefore appears to have been given on the seventh day of the month, while the expedition of the spies recorded in the next chapter occupied the time from the fifth to the eighth, the message to the eastern tribes being sent during the same interval.

FEATHERS WERE PINNED ON.

Poultry Breeder Was Sent to Prison for Cruelty.

At Sonneberg, Germany, this other day a well known poultry breeder named Morgenthau, was sentenced to six weeks imprisonment for having inflicted terrible suffering on a number of fowls exhibited by him at the recent great German Poultry Show held in that town.

Morgenthau hoped to secure firsts in certain of the highest classes with his fowls, but the feathers of a number of cocks were not in accordance with the regulations governing the exhibits in these classes. He accordingly plucked the birds, and, having procured a sufficient quantity of the correct feathers, fastened them skillfully to the flesh of the fowls with pins.

In order to keep the tail feathers of other cocks in an upright position, Morgenthau attached them to wire clamps, driven into the flesh of the birds.

So indignant were the judges that they gave Morgenthau a severe flogging before handing him over to the police.

...according to one or other of Cap. Marryat's heroes, by the printers and their devils.

The councils that the Government of India now propose to establish, both Imperial and local, are only advisory councils—the former apparently to advise the Viceroy or Governor-General, and the latter to advise the Governors of the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay, and the Lieut.-Governors of Bengal, the Punjab, Burma, etc. The electors will be all income taxpayers—those having an income of rupees, one thousand (about $330) per annum—a comfortable income for the native of India, with his simple wants—rice and cotton clothes) and university graduates of more than five years' standing. Probably when given effect to, not more than one per cent. of the population will be found to be eligible as voters.

CAUSES OF OUTBREAK.

As to the causes of the recent disaster amongst the people of India there are many factors at work, and it is difficult to correctly appraise the influence of each, but the following are, in the opinion of old Anglo-Indians, undoubtedly causes:—The growth of a large class, chiefly in Calcutta and neighborhood, of a low grade of university graduates and a very much more numerous class of what may be called "chronic undergraduates"—those who have passed the Calcutta University preliminary and intermediate examinations, but who have failed to graduate. Nothing appears to be able to eradicate from the mind of the native of India the idea that, having passed a Government examination, it is incumbent upon the Government to provide a billet for him—preferably some well-paid Government sinecure where he may rest on his laurels for the remainder of his life.

Hundreds do obtain Government clerkships, etc., but thousands fail to do so and they nurse—and more unfortunately voice—their grievances. Many edit or write for native newspapers whose name is legion, which appear to vie with one another in their abuse and misrepresentation of the action of the Government, which, in the ordinary English easy-going way, permits complete freedom to the press. The vilification of every action of the Government as is done, day after day, cannot but have the effect of lowering British prestige in the eyes of the masses. The plague regulations, which a paternal Government endeavors to enforce for the good of the native, and which have saved thousands, if not millions, of lives, are constant causes of friction—the native of India apparently preferring to die in his good old way.

JAPANESE SUCCESS.

Another cause of the restlessness has been the success of the Japanese. If, as is argued, one Asiatic can show their equality with Europeans in the arts of peace and beat them in war, why not another? There has been since the Russo-Japanese war much talk of "an Independent India," and "Bengal a nation," forgetting or ignoring that whereas the Japanese are a united people, the people of India are absolutely different in race, in language and in manner of thought. The Georgia has no more in common with the Madras than the Highlander with the Greek, the Punjabi no more in common with the Burmese than the Irishman with the Russian. If what happened before British rule began in India is any criterion as to what would occur again if that rule were withdrawn, the Bengalis, the people now most loudly expressing their discontent, would be those who would suffer most at the hands of the fighting races—the warlike Sikh and Rajput would enjoy nothing more than terrorizing and "looting" from the, to them, despised "fish-eating" Bengalis.

KITCHENER'S REFORMS.

The changes introduced by Lord Kitchener, the energetic Commander-in-Chief, the missing of troops on the north-taking the Southerner many miles from his home—and the very strenuous manœuvres he has introduced biscuit are served in the mess-room.

The work of the day begins with either physical drill or study. Half of each cadet do the one or the other on alternate mornings.

At ten minutes to eight breakfast is served and is followed by drill and prayers. At nine class work begins and continues with a short interval till one.

In view of the subjects taught at Osborne it must be recollected that seamanship in the old sense of the word is a thing of the past. The modern battleship is full of delicate and involved mechanism, which requires precise engineering knowledge as much as any other nautical quality.

A large proportion consequently of the cadet's time is given to the practical study of engineering in the workshops and instructional steamboats attached to the college. The shops are at Kingston, about a mile from the college, and the cadets march down in batches, slip on their overalls and study marine engineering in a practical manner, handling tools and receiving instructions on the working of the intricate machinery which is installed there.

There is an age when machinery appeals to nearly every boy, and the cadets throw themselves into the practical work with intense zeal, so that it is often difficult to get them away smartly from the shops.

This is the list of the subjects in which the cadets receive instruction:—Mathematics, mechanics, engineering, seamanship and navigation, French and German, English grammar and literature, history (including naval history), geography, bible study, drill and physical training. Dinner is served at 1.10, and in the winter terms is followed by two hours and a half for recreation. This time is passed on the big playing fields, cricket, tennis, hockey and football being played, according to season. Swimming and boating may also be indulged, though, like all other games, they are optional. On Wednesday and Saturday the usual half-holiday is given.

From four to six-thirty comes more study, after milk has been served in the mess-room. At seven the cadets sit down to a substantial tea; and then half an hour's study, half an hour's play, and prayers end the day. Rounds and "lights out" are at 9.15 p.m.

SEA TRAINING.

Periodically cadets are sent out for a week on a training cruiser to acquire familiarity with the actual working conditions of their profession, and during this week they absorb engineering, seamanship and navigation nearly all the time. It is usually arranged that the week should come in their first term.

At entry to Osborne the cadets must be between twelve and thirteen, and are only eligible for one examination. The fee paid by all cadets, with the exception of a few selected by the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, are £75 per annum, and, in addition, the outfit costs about £35, and personal expenditure about £8 per term. It is reckoned that, subtracting these payments, each cadet costs the Admiralty £28 a year. There are three terms in the year similar in date to those of the public schools, with the usual three months' aggregate of holidays. Each cadet is allowed £5 a week pocket-money, and his friends are not encouraged to supply him with more. It is reckoned that that sum spent at the canteen is more or less harmless. Every boy admitted to Osborne has to pass a very searching medical examination. Though the life is pretty closely packed with work, the greatest efforts are made to avoid overstrain, but any lapse in health would necessitate the immediate withdrawal of a cadet. This new system of naval training seems to have been adopted to catch the brightest and healthiest boys in the country, and the naval officer of the future ought to represent the British race at its best and fullest development.

"She has a fine mind, hasn't she?" "Remarkable! One of those minds that, when you are with her, you can't decide which makes you the more happy—to listen, or to realize that you are not married to her!"

PICKPOCKETS' WILY WAYS

PLACES WHERE HE IS ALWAYS LOOKING FOR PLUNDER.

Race Tracks, Athletic Grounds and Seaside Resorts are Their Favorite Rendezvous.

At one time the modern detective was apt to despise the pickpocket somewhat, characterizing him as a low and not particularly clever thief. His ingenuity, daring, and coolness to-day, however, "compel our admiration," to quote one of our cleverest detectives, "and we feel pleased when we lay one of them by the heels."

The pickpocket's tricks are many and various, and he is adding to their number every day. The false arm game is one of the latest, and is calculated to deceive a detective, even although he may have his eye on the operator. A coat is thrown loosely over a false arm, which is held naturally. Apparently both of the pickpocket's hands are in view, while in reality the skilful fingers of one hand are going through the pockets of the man beside him.

The use of the pocketless overcoat, or the cape-coat, which makes an entire cover for the hands, are two old dodges, which, nevertheless, are still popular with the pickpocket. He often prefers, however, to use a novel invention known as

THE SASH METHOD.

The sash consists of a piece of black silk or alpaca two yards long and three-quarters wide. It is folded the same as a neck scarf and crossed centrally beneath the coat and vest, both ends being brought under the arms and placed in the hip pockets of the trousers. When ready for action the "tool," as the man is called who actually picks the pocket, places his hands behind the folds of this device, and it enables him to conceal his purpose as he "fronts" a man to rob him of his watch or money, if the latter is in his trousers pocket.

A "tool," however, has other means of covering his hands without resorting to the aid of coat or sash. A newspaper or theatre programme is often used. Beware of looking over a stranger's shoulder to glance at a newspaper or programme—a little action we are often guilty of when it only necessitates a turn of the head. You may be risking nothing, but, on the other hand, you may be seated or standing by the side of a professional pickpocket, who has only to hold the paper at a certain angle while you are engrossed in some item, to cover his movements as he relieves you of your valuables.

THE BLACK SILK HANDKERCHIEF

and hat are employed in the same manner as the paper, only the former is sometimes used in the "sling method" to carry a supposedly crippled arm. The manner in which that arm would rest against your face, as if raised to avoid someone striking it, while the other hand took your scarf-pin and watch would excite compassion from the victim himself.

The pickpocket's most dastardly trick—but one, it is noted, which is only used by the man who is too clumsy to perform that sleight of hand upon which the clever thief prides himself—is that of blinding the victim with pepper blown through a pipe. The bowl of the latter is filled with a false bottom and second tube, the cavity below the false bottom being filled with cayenne pepper, while tobacco is placed above it. Approaching a gentleman in an ill-lighted street, the thief asks for a light for his pipe, and while the victim feels for his matches he is suddenly blinded by a discharge of cayenne pepper, which the scoundrel blows through the hole in the bottom of the pipe into his eyes. Maddened with the terrible pain the victim presses his hands to his eyes, and the robber

HOME.

SOME DAINTY DISHES.

Snow Cream.—Into a pint of warm milk put one ounce of butter, half an ounce of sugar, one bay leaf and two ounces of ground rice. Stir till this boils and forms a smooth, thick substance, then pour into an oiled mould. When cold turn out and serve with Raspberry Jam.

Curry Soup.—Peel three or four onions, slice them and fry in a saucepan with two ounces of dripping till a golden color. Add a tablespoonful of curry powder; stir well. Pour on the onions three pints of stock and let it cook for half an hour. Thicken with flour, add the juice of a lemon, pepper and salt to taste. Boil up and serve with well-boiled rice.

Apple Snow.—Bake three large apples till cooked, skin and core, and pass the fruit through a fine sieve. Beat the whites of two eggs well sweetened to a stiff froth, adding the apple pulp gradually. Flavor all with grated lemon-peel. Pile this roughly on a dish, and set in a very cool place till required.

French Cornflour Tartlets.—The ingredients required are five ounces of caster sugar, two teaspoonfuls of cornflour, and a dozen raisins, with the rind and juice of one lemon. Mix the cornflour with a gill of cold water, stir in the juice and rind of the lemon with sugar. Cook all together for five minutes, stirring all the time. Then add the raisins, stoned and chopped small. Line some patty pans with short crust, fill with the mixture, cover with more pastry, and bake for ten minutes. A little fresh butter is an improvement to the lemon mixture, if it can be afforded.

Saffron Tea-cakes.—First color four tablespoonfuls of milk with a few threads of saffron by heating both together. Rub two ounces of butter into one pound of flour, add to it two ounces of sugar and a pinch of salt. Stir half an ounce of yeast into the tepid strained milk and a beaten egg. Pour this into the centre of the flour and knead into a stiff dough. Cover with a cloth and leave in a warm place for nearly an hour to rise. Turn out the dough, roll it lightly, and cut into rounds. Bake in a quick oven. These tea-cakes may be cut in half and buttered, either hot or cold.

Potato Salad.—Peel boiled potatoes while hot and slice thin or cut into cubes of uniform size. To a pint of these when cold add a grated onion, a tablespoonful of minced parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Make a French dressing, pour this over the salad, toss and stir this that each bit of potato may become coated, put into a salad bowl and set on the ice until chilled through. Garnish with sliced beets and sprigs of parsley.

To Make Cream Puff Filling.—Wet three tablespoonfuls of flour to a paste with a little cold water and stir it into a cup of hot milk. Boil, stirring for one minute, or until it is smooth and free from lumps; take from the fire and whip it gradually into three beaten eggs, to which has been added a half-cup of sugar. Stir over the fire until smooth and thick, take from the stove, add vanilla to taste and set away to cool before putting into the puffs.

Calves' Brains au Gratin.—The brains, after being cleansed, boiled, and cut into small squares must be added to some well-seasoned white sauce, or parsley sauce, previously made hot. Mix all lightly together and then put into scallop shells, stew fried breadcrumbs on the top and place in the oven for a few minutes. Take them up, dish up on a doily and garnish with sprays of parsley. Ham, tongue, or any kind of pickles may be added in small quantities.

Baked Minced Roll is quite a dainty dish which can be made out of scraps of cold meat, ham, tongue, etc. Pass all the meat through a mincing machine nearly boiling, let it then become cold. Remove the china from the water and wipe. This treatment will render the china much less liable to crack than if used before being boiled.

Stains made by medicines and liniments are among the most obstinate of removal, and frequently tax amateur knowledge to the utmost. Iodine marks may, however, be successfully removed by means of liquid ammonia, a little of the spirit being poured into a saucer, the stained garment laid across it, and the spot dabbed repeatedly with the fingers until it disappears. It should then be rinsed in tepid water and washed with strong soapsuds in the usual manner. Cod-liver oil stains can likewise be eliminated by means of ammonia, while fuller's earth made into a paste with cold water is usually successful in removing marks caused by linseed oil, two or three applications, however, being necessary.

MEN READ BETTER BOOKS

WOMAN LIBRARIAN SAYS WOMEN PREFER NOVELS.

Most Men Seem to Read With the Definite Idea of Bettering Themselves.

"Men read better books than women," is the opinion of Miss F. R. Petrie, who has charge of the 50,000 volumes of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association library, of New York, which is used yearly by 40,000 men readers. "The percentage of fiction read in this library is lower than in any public library."

"The men want books on economics and sociology, on finance and business, and of late, owing to the great interest in psychology, William James has been more in demand than the latest novel. And this is not because we taboo fiction, for we are very careful to keep on our shelves all the latest novels worth while."

MEN'S BETTER MOTIVE.

"Women largely read fiction, as I know from my experience in other libraries frequented by my own sex. And many who do read more serious books do so largely as a pose, they want to create an effect of being serious-minded rather than to gain real improvement or pursue a line of investigation."

"The men for the most part seem to read with the definite idea of bettering themselves, and not a few of them report to me their success in the way of higher wages due to their reading along suggested lines."

"There is great interest in art and its application to many industries. As a result of work in our art section a clerk in a dress goods house told me that his salary had been largely increased because it was found that he knew a lot about textile processes."

SHOULD GET OUT AND HUSTLE.

"Sometimes the desire of men for knowledge is rather amusing. Some men spend a great deal of time reading the 'How To' books. Two or three men have spent hours in reading these books. We always ask them why they don't get out and hustle, and to some of them this is a novel idea."

"Then it appeals to my womanly sense of humor to find men studying 'How to Swim,' 'How to Walk,' 'How to Jump,' 'How to be Strong,' when right down stairs there are swimming pools, running tracks, an open air field and a gymnasium, all in charge of experts whose business it is to teach these things by actual practice."

"The men who do read fiction have very definite ideas of what they want, and, as a general rule, the very elements which make a novel popular with women will cause men to shun it. In the first place, men will not read a book which has 'love' in its title."

LOVE STORY WITHOUT GIRLS.

ON THE FARM.

THE MARKS OF A GOOD COW.

To tell whether a cow will give rich or poor milk, there are no outward or visible signs about the animal to guide us in the matter. The man who milks her even cannot tell how much butter is in the pail; but in the Babcock test, dairymen have a simple means of testing the milk of individual animals and weeding out the unprofitable members of their herds. Every farmer should make it a rule to test his cows regularly, and know exactly what each animal in the herd is doing. It is not sufficient to depend entirely upon the returns from the creamery, as, when all the milks are mixed, it is impossible to select the most profitable cows in the herd with anything like accuracy of judgment. However, the marks of a good cow, showing whether she is capable of producing a large quantity of milk, are tolerably plain to all who are acquainted with cattle, yet there are such a variety of relative points requiring consideration that we can only picture them in the model. The best milk cow, as a rule, is of medium size, and small-boned. The head is small and rather long, narrow between the horns and wide between the eyes. The ears are thin, covered with soft, silky hair, the inside of the ears being of a rich orange color. The eyes are large and bright, with a placid expression; the horns set on a high pate, bending wide apart at the base, and curving inwards and upwards at the points; the neck long and thin, slender, and well-cut under the throat, but entirely free from anything like a "beefy" appearance. The shoulder-blades should meet narrow at the top, widening gradually towards the points, which should be broad and well rounded; the ribs rather straight and wide, indicating a good digestion and constitution, for everything depends on that in a good milk cow. The loins should be broad, and the hips high and wide, the rump even with the hips, the pelvis wide, giving plenty of room for the udder; the thighs thin; the hind legs a little crooked, with a long, large foot. The skin should be soft and mellow, and of a yellow butter color.

The milk veins in front of the udder are usually a fair indication of a good milk cow, and the larger they are, the better the indications. In extra good cows they branch out into four branches along the belly, but they all unite before reaching the udder. The more irregular the course, the better the indication that the cow is a good milker, but the veins give no indication of the richness of the milk. The udder should be covered with a short, downy coat of hair. This hair should begin to turn its backward course from the front teats, running in the direction between the teats, then on the back part of the udder, called the escutcheon, and on as far as the vulva in the best cows. The wider the belt of this upturned hair, the better. It should be short and velvety, covering a soft, orange-colored skin. The shape and size of the udder is, however, by far the most reliable index to a good cow. All the other marks are only of relative importance, and it is better to have a scraggy-looking cow any day, with a good udder, than a grand-looking beast with a miserable bag. No matter how good-looking a dairy cow may be, except she has a well-developed udder, with its accompanying network of mammary glands, she cannot be expected to excel as a pail-filler.

The ideal udder is the one which is well developed both fore and aft, one that is carried high up towards the escutcheon, and at the same time goes a long way forward under the belly. In addition to this, the udder must be deep and square in shape—the deeper and squarer the better. Its four teats should be of good size, and placed as nearly as possible at equal distances apart. Cows possessing udders of this kind may al-

Approaching a gentleman in an ill-lit street, the thief asks for a light for his pipe, and while the victim feels for his matches he is suddenly blinded by a discharge of cayenne pepper, which the scoundrel blows through the hole in the bottom of the pipe into his eyes. Maddened with the terrible pain the victim presses his hands to his eyes, and the robber scratches his watch and chain and decamps, to repeat his exploit on some other.

UNSUSPECTING PEDESTRIAN.

It is not often, however, that the pickpocket works alone, although women who belong to the light-fingered fraternity—and who, by the way, are often more successful than men—usually prefer to do so. Men thieves like to work in "mobs," for the simple reason that they can transfer the "boodle" from one to the other in a crowd. Consequently, if recognized by a detective and arrested on suspicion, there is nothing in their possession on which they can be convicted.

Besides, confederates—or "stalls," as they are called in the vernacular of the "profession"—are necessary to do that little bit of hustling which makes the "to do" task so much easier and lessens the risk of detection.

Many readers are doubtless aware that from termini in busy thoroughfares are places where the pickpocket is always looking for plunder, and a "mob" of four will often work together in such a crowd. A prosperous-looking victim is selected, and as he attempts to board the car the four quickly surround him, with the "artist" behind. The confederate in front uses every subterfuge to block the progress of the victim until the coup has been brought off, and while the men on each side hem him in and distract his attention with their hustling, the man behind helps himself from his pockets. It is a trick which rarely fails with cool, expert thieves, although amateurs at the game are often caught through

LACK OF NERVE AND QUICKNESS.

The "stall" or confederate will not allow anyone who has been chosen for a victim to change his position until a peculiar chuck tells him the trick has been accomplished; or unless there has been an alarm from an outside source. When more than one "stall" is used, the other men devote part of their attention to watching any of the passengers who may be inclined to suspect mischief, and, with their foot-tee in close proximity to that of the "fool," they can convey a danger-signal without fear of attracting the least attention. When such a signal reaches the "fool," he will desist in his attempt at plunder, and though he has never turned his head to see who prevented the larceny, he will completely shut the suspicions of the same individual by his manner thereafter.

Generally speaking, the profits of pickpocketing are not worth the risk. Occasionally thieves make a good haul, as in the case of the King's gardener, partly already alluded to; but often great risk is run to secure a man's pocket-book, for instance, only to find that it is simply filled with cards and memoranda.

Hard cash is what the pickpocket likes to secure. For jewellery he can only get about one-half of what it is worth from the fence, while for watches he rarely gets more than one-fourth. Consequently the professional pickpocket must be industrious to earn a livelihood.—London Tit-Bits.

Baked Minced Roll is quite a dainty dish which can be made out of scraps of cold meat, ham, tongue, etc. Pass all the meat through a mincing machine and, add to it a third of breadcrumbs, season with chopped parsley, pepper and salt. Beat an egg and add to the mixture. Make a nice short crust, roll it out and lay the meat on it, fold the pastry over so as to make a neat roll. Bake for twenty minutes and serve hot with brown gravy, or cold with salad.

Braised Mutton and French Beans.—Any part of mutton may be cooked thus, but the chump end of the loin is excellent done from this recipe. Roll it in greased paper, tying it on, and roast without browning; boil and drain some French beans; dish the mutton and pour a little brown glaze over it, skim off the fat off the gravy, stir the beans to it and arrange them round the meat, strain the remainder of the gravy and serve it in a tureen.

"The men who do read fiction" have very definite ideas of what they want, and, as a general rule, the very elements which make a novel popular with women will cause men to shun it. In the first place, men will not read a book which has "love" in its title.

LOVE STORY WITHOUT GIRLS.

"One man asked me in all seriousness for a love story without any girls in it. The men like men's books. As a general rule the novel readers among men are mostly callow youths or older or prosperous men who have made a success. The others are too busy reading serious things to help them in their callings to give much time to novels.

"The effect of books on men seems more direct than it does on women. A man recently got Hopkinson Smith's 'Wood Fire Stories,' and as a result he has searched all over New York to find a room with a wood fire where a little club can meet. His adventures are very interesting, and his report is that there are a few wood fires in New York and none is for rent."

A LOVE VENDETTA.

Terrible Vengeance of Rejected Suitor at Fondi, Italy.

The details of a love vendetta at Fondi, in the Province of Caserta, Italy, have just been received at Rome. The crime stands out as one of the most diabolical in the criminal annals of modern Italy, and beside it even the barbaric excesses of the Middle Ages seem curiously mild and commonplace.

Diade Dancona, who was considered the prettiest among the maidens of Fondi, had for a couple of years been annoyed by the attentions of a shepherd, Vincenzo de Silvestro, aged 22, with whom her relatives induced her to have nothing to do, as he was a fellow of bad repute, and had already served a few months in prison for thieving. About a year ago he attacked the girl while on her way home at night. For this he was sentenced to an imprisonment of ten months. The prosecution was brought about by the girl's family.

For this reason de Silvestro vowed to kill her and exterminate the whole family. Soon after his release he went forth to a thatched hut where the girl was passing the night in company with an aged aunt, her thirteen-year-old cousin, and her little sister, aged 11. Having fastened and blockaded the two available exits of the hut, he piled straw against the wall, saturated it with oil, and set the mass on fire. In this business he was aided by an ex-criminal youth named Bellone. Both guarded the exits with loaded guns till the shrieks of the victims were stifled in death.

But the criminal exploits of de Silvestro did not stop here. Fearful lest a farmer living a few hundred yards away might have witnessed his work, and denounce him and Bellone to the police, de Silvestro and his associate snatched up to his house and called him to come out on an urgent errand. The poor man, suspecting nothing, came out in his night clothes, and was shot dead.

THE EARTH DRYING UP.

Failure of the Water Supply Will Depopulate It.

That the globe is gradually drying up is the conclusion reached by the well-known French geologist, Martel, in a paper read before the French Academy of Science.

M. Martel has for many years made careful observations of subterranean caverns in various parts of France. They contain, he says, not only the secret of pre-historic life, inasmuch as they were the homes of men of the remotest ages, but also bear indications of the earth's future.

M. Martel has found proof of a steady fall in the level of the water in these subterranean depths, and from this fact he concludes that the world will eventually become depopulated through the failure of the water supply, and finally become a dried-up planet.

The ideal order is the one which is well developed both fore and aft, one that is carried high up towards the escautcheon, and at the same time goes a long way forward under the belly. In addition to this, the udder must be deep and square in shape—the deeper and squarer the better. Its four teats should be of good size, and placed as nearly as possible at equal distances apart. Cows possessing udders of this kind may always be counted on to prove good milkers, just as other cows possessing small, round-shaped udders, with teats so close together that they almost touch one another at the points, may invariably be put down as poor pail-fillers, no matter how fine their appearance may be, or how good-looking in other respects.—Farmer's Gazette.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Pigs intended for fattening should be forced for growth early, and later given foods rich in carbonaceous elements, that will fit them for early market.

Lampas in a colic is a sort of infantile disease that rarely makes trouble. It is usually cured by daily giving the colt two or three ears of hard, dry corn to wet from the cob until the so-called lampas is permanently pushed back.

Loss in the condition of sheep from shortage of feed or water is quickly shown in the fleece. It becomes dry, harsh and lighter in color. While the grass was long, sheep did not suffer for water, but they cannot thrive in such weather as we are now having without water. Lambs will make no growth and a weak place will show in the fleece. Two weeks of neglect now will require two months to regain the loss.

An ideal poultry farm should have a stream of pure fresh water running through it, with meadows and rolling banks shaded with big trees. There the turkeys could not help but grow fine and large, for they would be healthy and happy as the day was long. In the early morning they would take a tramp over the meadows, spread out almost in line, like soldiers marching, and after filling their crops nearly to bursting with bugs and grasshoppers, they would seek the water and shade near midday, and after resting and dozing till the cool afternoon, would again go on a grasshopper hunt until time to turn homeward at sundown. Turkeys in grasshopper-time want very little feeding at night, though it is best to offer them a handful of grain, as it tempts them to come home at evening.

CHILDREN IN GLASGOW.

Physical Standards of Over 70,000 School Children Tested.

Very valuable to any future investigation into the physical standards of school children should be the tables and diagrams that have been prepared by Dr. W. Leslie Mackenzie and Captain A. Foster, after measuring and weighing over 70,000 children in the public schools of Glasgow. Dividing the schools into four classes, as represented by the social status of the parents, they find that only in Group D (the highest) do the children reach the standards of weight and height laid down by the Anthropometrical Committee. The striking feature of the measurements, however, is the close relation between physical standards and the conditions under which the children live. Boys from one-roomed homes 56 lbs., from three-roomed homes 60 lbs., from four-roomed 64 lbs. The size of the home is, of course, an expression of the position in the social side of the family; it is not only the size of the home, but the difference in food, in clothing, in the whole condition of life which accounts for the differences in the standards of the children. But it is rarely that any investigators have so clearly demonstrated that the raising of an imperial race is so absolutely dependent on these social reforms at home which will give better conditions of housing, more open space, and cheap and abundant food.

MISTAKES IN ETIQUETTE

WHAT YOU SHOULD AND SHOULD NOT DO IN SOCIETY.

Hints for Men and Women Who Are Not Just Sufficiently Posted on What to Do.

Etiquette of to-day is full of pitfalls, not only for the ignorant, but also for those people who pride themselves on their good breeding and complete knowledge of correct manners. Take, for instance, the case of the man who courteously gives up his seat in a public conveyance to a woman, or who passes up her ticket or fare. Probably not one in twenty is aware that he should raise his hat immediately afterwards, and that not to do so is a violation of a common rule of etiquette.

To shake hands, or not to shake, is a question which puzzles many men when meeting a lady acquaintance. The rule on this point is a somewhat elastic one, but the safest plan is to follow the lady's lead. No man, of course, raises his hat or attempts to speak to a lady whom he again meets after a previous introduction, unless she makes the first intimation of recognition. Neither must he bow or attempt to shake hands unless she makes the first movement. It is these privileges, of course, which enable a lady to terminate an acquaintanceship which she does not desire to continue. And just a word

ABOUT INTRODUCTIONS.

When performing this function, do not make the common error of introducing the lady to the gentleman. Vice versa is always the rule.

It is a popular fallacy, by the by, in regard to handshaking, that it is somewhat ill-mannered to offer a gloved hand. Many people, under the circumstances, have a habit of saying, "Excuse my glove." There is not the slightest reason why they should make this excuse. In fact, it is often preferable to shake hands with a person who has a glove on than with one who has not.

Without exaggeration, it may be said that you can tell a man's character by his visiting-card. If it is elaborately printed, the legibility being almost hidden by embellishments and flourishes, you may be quite sure that the owner's love of display considerably outruns his knowledge of what is correct and in good taste. A gentleman's visiting-card should be printed in small copper-plate type, without ornamentation of any kind. The card should be plain, not thick, and the prefix "Mr." should always be printed.

BEFORE THE NAME.

Above all, initials appertaining to honorary rank should never be written or printed on a card.

Although fashion has vetoed the sending of memorial cards to either relatives or friends, and mourning is a matter of sentiment, more or less, the following periods of mourning are usually observed in society. Widows, strictly speaking, should wear mourning for two years, although after eight or nine months half-mourning may be adopted. The same period has been fixed for widowers, although they usually enter society much sooner than do widows. A parent who loses a son or daughter is expected to wear black for twelve months, the period being the same for a child who loses a parent. For a brother or sister, the longest period of mourning is six months; for a grandparent, nine months; for an uncle or aunt, three months; and the same for a nephew or niece.

PAYING FOR THE PAST

SOME OF JOHN BULL'S PERPETUAL PENSIONS.

Millions Paid Out to Descendants of Men Who Were Rewarded Ages Ago.

A curious instance of John Bull's marvellous generosity was brought up the other day in Parliament when Mr. H. C. Lea, M. P., asked a question about the Rodney, Schoenberg, and Nelson pensions. As a nation, we do not know much about this matter, and yet it is a thing to be proud of, as showing how strictly Englishmen keep to their engagements, even when these are oddly extravagant, says London Answers.

In earlier times, when the King or Parliament wanted to reward a man, they not only paid him a liberal pension while he lived, but promised to pay it to his heirs and assigns for ever. These are known as perpetual or hereditary pensions. There were hundreds of them, but most have been commuted by a big cash payment out of the taxes. In the six years from 1881 to 1887 alone no less a sum than £527,933 was paid out in this way.

CASH VALUE OF ANCESTORS.

Seven distinct pensions were granted to various members of the Duke of Grafton's family. Some of them commenced over two hundred years ago. One of them was a modest £62 9s. 8d. a year as Officer of the Pipe. Another was £843 as Receiver-General and Controller of the Seals. Both of these offices were given by Charles II. to the Duke of Grafton and his descendants for ever. A third pension amounted to £9,000 a year, made up of three pensions to various members of the family, but all coming ultimately to the duke. Another was worth £6,870 a year—the interest on Consols and the rent of land bought by the Government at a cost of £229,000 as compensation for the loss of certain excise duties enjoyed by the family. This is a nice little lot to get from the public purse without working for it. Altogether, according to Mr. Jennings, M. P., one of the Select Committee, the Duke of Grafton's family has been paid £1,030,000 on pensions.

It is the perpetuity that does it. Take the £5,000 a year granted for ever to the Duke of Marlborough in 1702. This was paid up to the year 1884, and then commuted for an annuity for ten years more of £12,796. Multiply the former by 182, and the latter by ten, and you have a total payment of £1,037,960.

NO DESCENDANTS, BUT WE PAY.

Lord Dauverquerque's pension has been recently referred to. This gentleman lost all his income in Germany and France through religious persecution, and, to do him a good turn, William III. gave him, his heirs, and assigns for ever, £2,000 a year out of John Bull's pocket, and the pension was paid for 159 years—that is, £318,000. In 1853 Lord Comper owned four-fifths of it, and this he sold to the Government for £49,000. We still pay £375 a year to a Mr. Cohen.

William Penn was granted the whole of the State of Pennsylvania when the United States was a British colony. He died in the year 1718. Half a century later the Revolution occurred and George III.—the most remarkable of pension-givers—granted £130,000 to Penn's heirs and descendants. But, in addition to this big sum, a pension of £4,000 a year was given for ever. This was paid from 1790 to 1884, when it was commuted for £107,780. Thus a total of £613,780 was paid out of the public purse. But, according to Mr. Jennings, M. P., William Penn really had no descendants at all, and the Secretary of the Treasury, when questioned on this point, said there was no way of finding out.

BENEFITS OF WALKING

WELL-KNOWN PHYSICIANS SAY IT IS BEST EXERCISE.

Stop All Indolent Ways and Begin the Daily Practice of the Health-giving Habit.

Walking calls forth an amount of energy far beyond what is generally supposed, and therefore it ranks as one of the best forms of physical exerciser. As a spell in the open air, amidst ever-changing scenery, walking contrasts favorably with the exercises common to a stuffy gymnasium. Moreover, walking demands an extra effort on the part of the very organs which contribute more than all the rest to the enjoyment of life, writes Dr. Joseph Carter, in Pearson's Weekly.

If every person under sixty (children excluded) walked six miles a day their health would feel the benefit. Such a walk should never occasion unnecessary fatigue.

Now, as to the actual benefits that walking effects, and the peculiar advantage to which the exercise gives rise. In the first place, the temperature of the body is sufficiently raised to cause a more rapid interchange in the contractile tissues. This means that, by these quickened changes, the muscles are more abundantly supplied with nutriment from the blood, and their waste products by various channels more quickly dispersed.

SHARPENS THE APPETITE.

Then, with regard to respiration, this, of course, is accelerated, and breathing becomes much deeper. Consequently, a larger volume of oxygen is absorbed by the blood, and oxygen, it will be remembered, is of far more importance than our daily food.

Next we look to the skin; the millions of pores being widely opened, the increased perspiration carries out of the body a larger quantity of effete matter than would otherwise escape. Digestion, also, is so markedly improved by walking that the appetite is sharpened for a subsequent meal, and the food is taken with a keener relish.

Then, as everybody knows, the circulation of the blood is accelerated, so that every nook and corner of the body receives an extra quantity of nutriment. Lastly, the organs of excretion are stimulated by walking, so that a larger quantity of refuse is eliminated by the natural channels. The few facts thus briefly enumerated should of themselves suffice to encourage the practice of walking. But more has yet to be claimed in favor of this admirable exercise.

In addition to what has already been stated respecting respiration, still further benefits accrue from the more perfect breathing of walking exercise.

The chest is separated from the abdomen by means of the diaphragm, which occupies much the position of a ceiling and floor between an upper and lower chamber. Above the diaphragm are the lungs which partially rest upon the structure, while immediately below it are the stomach, liver, and spleen. The diaphragm, being an elastic membrane, is pressed downwards as the lungs are fully inflated with air. This downward movement brings pressure to bear on the organs below, hence they are constantly submitted to a series of massage.

A GAIN IN NOXYGEN.

Treatment of this nature is highly beneficial all round, but it is especially so with regard to the liver; consequently, we find that persons accustomed to regular walking exercises rarely need to complain of "a torpid liver." And then, beyond all this, the more complete inflation of the lungs due to walking occasions a more perfect supply of gaseous food. The actual gain of oxygen, and the increased dispersion

MAN FROZEN TO DEATH

ON THE SUMMIT OF THE MIGHTY MATTERHORN.

The Survivor of a Tragedy of the Alps Tells a Tale of His Terrible Experience.

Dr. Robert Helbing, of the Swiss Army, has given a vivid account of the terrible experiences which he and two friends, Major Henri Sporri, also of the Swiss Army, and Herr Karl Imfeld, an engineer, underwent near the summit of the Matterhorn last week.

"We started from Zermatt with the object of passing the first night at a hut on the Lac Noir," said Dr. Helbing. "Darkness overtook us two hours from the hut, however, and we spent the night on the Col du Lion."

"We continued the ascent at day-break, but as we climbed the weather grew steadily worse. Nevertheless, after a consultation, we decided to push on. Major Sporri was especially anxious to stand on the summit of the Matterhorn."

'FOR THE FIRST AND LAST TIME,' he said.

"At 2 p.m. we reached the dangerous portion of the journey, where ropes are attached to rocks overhanging deep precipices. Then the storm broke."

"It is impossible to describe the fury of an Alpine storm in the higher altitudes. The hail and snow forced us to seek shelter under a ledge of rock, which was, however, exposed to the terrific wind. There was no other shelter near."

"There we crouched all night long, while the storm raged with increasing fury. We were being gradually frozen by the icy wind."

"Thunder and lightning added to the horror of our situation toward morning, and, although we were not actually struck by lightning, we received many electric shocks. One was so violent that Major Sporri lost consciousness."

"About 11 a. m., realizing that if we remained longer under the ledge we would be frozen to death, I persuaded my companions to

RISK THE DESCENT.

"Major Sporri was in a state of exhaustion bordering on collapse, and after taking a few feeble steps he fell face downward in the snow."

"Herr Imfeld and I worked for several hours trying to revive him with brandy and massage, but he died without regaining consciousness."

"Both Herr Imfeld and myself were so weak that we could only walk very slowly. We hoped that we might meet a rescuing party, but we did not see a living creature, and so we plodded on until midnight."

"The snow was again falling thickly, but we did not seem to mind it. We continued walking as in a dream."

"Finally we threw ourselves under a ledge on the Epaule, utterly worn out and disheartened, and hardly caring whether we lived or died. I worked hard throughout the night trying to keep Imfeld from freezing to death. His feet and hands were gradually freezing, and he begged me to let him die in peace."

"At the first streak of dawn we again started the descent, which, under ordinary circumstances, should be accomplished in a few hours. But poor Imfeld, whose legs had been badly frozen, could scarcely drag

ONE FOOT AFTTR THE OTHER.

"He finally insisted that I should go on ahead to the little hotel at the Lac Noir and send up guides to assist him and to recover the body of Major Sporri."

"There was no guide at the hotel, and just as I was about to start for Zermatt Imfeld stumbled into the hotel more dead than alive. I left him in

A WOMAN'S ANTICS.

Danced on Hotel Dining Table and Rang Bells all Night.

An American woman who calls herself Mrs. Amy Root and says she is a cousin of the United States Secretary of State, has been taken to the police infirmary of Paris, after she had driven a number of hotel proprietors and cabmen nearly out of their minds.

Mrs. Root arrived in Paris on Aug. 22, and took a room at the Hotel Normandy. Last Saturday the proprietor of the hotel was obliged to expostulate with Mrs. Root, who, although she was perfectly sober, insisted on practising the matinee dance on one of the dining-room tables before the guests in the hotel had finished dinner.

She left the room and the hotel, took a cab and drove to a dancing hall in Montmartre. On her way back to the hotel she hit the cabman over the head with her umbrella. He got down from his box, and Mrs. Root jumped out of his cab and into another.

Both cabmen remained outside the Hotel Normandy most of the night, demanding payment at intervals, while Mrs. Root practised grand opera in her sitting-room until 5 o'clock, and then rang all the bells she could get at until 8 o'clock.

On Sunday she took cabs all day, employing no fewer than ten, and in the course of the day engaged rooms at several hotels. At the Hotel Continental, where she slept, she asked the concierge to pay a $20 cab fare for her.

On Monday morning she started using cabs at 6 o'clock going off in one cab, returning in another, and immediately going off again. She did not stop to pay the cabmen, and on Monday night she went to another hotel near the Madeleine.

Mrs. Root took cabs on Tuesday, and paid visits to all the hotels at which Americans mentioned in the Paris papers were staying, and at night the police had to take charge of her.

TAKES OFF FACE TO WASH IT.

Artificial Jaws and Checks for Victim of Accident.

Dr. Delair has just presented to the members of the French Academy of Medicine a man with an artificial face. In consequence of an accident with a gun while out shooting, the man had his chin, the lower part of the lower jaw, lips, a portion of his tongue, and the whole of his upper jaw and nose blown away. These have been replaced by artificial parts and the doctors present expressed astonishment at the marvelous ingenuity with which the work had been done.

The mechanical face is in four pieces. The first consists of a silver groove, into which some of the lower teeth are fixed. This is attached to a dental apparatus of tin, into which are fixed the remaining teeth. The second piece consists of a dental apparatus in vulcanite and gold for the upper row of nine teeth. This is fitted to two small protuberances, which fit into the nasal cavities. This also fills up the right sinus, which was smashed in. At the back is a piece of gold mechanism with hooks, used to fasten on the face piece.

The third piece of the mechanical face consists of three tin and lower lip. This is of India rubber, painted to resemble nature. Over the chin a false beard is fixed. At the back are a couple of small bolts, which pass through holes of the teeth and fix the lip to the artificial lower jaw. The fourth and last piece of the apparatus consists of the upper lip and nose, also in India rubber, and painted, to which is attached a false moustache. At the back are two small clasps, to which the upper dental piece and jaw are fixed.

The man is able to masticate his food with comparative ease. From a distance of a few feet the appearance of his face is quite natural. He can take off his artificial face himself, and washes it in soap and water every day.

was continued for £107,780. This a total of £613,780 was paid out of the public purse. But, according to Mr. Jennings, M. P., William Penn really had no descendants at all, and the Secretary of the Treasury, when questioned on this point, said there was no way of finding out.

Lord Nelson was dead, too, when the pension of £5,000 a year was granted in 1816. He had no direct descendants. The pension was given to his brother, and we have paid £565,000.

Many pensions were granted for ever where, according to the Select Committee, no service at all was ever rendered even to the people of that time. And somewhat similar is the following: where the man originally did something and got a salary, but his descendants do nothing, because the officer does not exist. The Hereditary Master of the Hawks gets £965 a year, made up as follows: His own salary, £391 1s. 5d.; for four falconers, £200; for purchase of hawks, £600; for pigeons and other meat for the hawks, £182 10s.; total £1,373 11s. 5d. "Customary deductions" bring it down to £965.

MILLIONS IN GENEROSITY.

Three thousand a year was paid to Lord Amhurst for eighty-two years, and then commuted for a ten years' annuity of £9,597 a year—total, £341,970. Two thousand a year for ever to Viscount Exmouth—a total payment to date being made of some £180,000. Seven hundred and eighty-six pounds to Sir E. Moslyn, and a like sum to Sir W. Eden, for offices abolished in 1638; total payment to date of commutation, £328,952. Two thousand a year for ever to Lord Rodney, granted in 1799, still being paid; total payments to date, £216,000. Four thousand a year to the Duke of Schomberg, granted in 1657, part commuted for £192,000, and £720 a year still being paid; total payments to date, about £930,500.

SIR E. GREY A RECLUSE.

England's Foreign Minister Grand, Gloomy and Silent.

T. P. O'Connor tells a remarkable story about Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey, in his paper. Grey is the best, most silent, and reserved man in the House of Commons. He never speaks and rarely appears in the chamber unless compelled to. Few know where he spends his time when not at the Foreign Office.

Always a recluse, since the tragic death of his wife two years ago, Sir Edward has cut himself off almost entirely from the world.

"I am told," says O'Connor, "that this man, who is probably the most powerful figure in the world, wielding more influence over destinies than any other Minister in any other land, from Friday or Saturday to Monday every week is lost to the world."

"He has a little cottage, really a zinc hut, by the banks of the River Itchen, in a corner of Hampshire, where at once nature is beautifully soft, English fashion, and where solitude is not profound. The zinc hut is within a few feet of the stream. Grey retires there without a friend, without even a servant, with a few tin boxes of food; and spends his hours either fishing, or lying down in his hut, with despatch boxes beside him."

"Wine does not pass his lips. It is a weird and lonely existence, but what reserve strength such periods of unbroken solitude and self-communings give to the man, especially in so rigidly eating and drinking. It is no wonder as he passes fitfully through the House this man of solitude and self-banishment should appear as though his thoughts were far away."

A schoolmaster was trying to explain the meaning of the word "concealed." "Now, boys," he said, "suppose that I was always boasting of my learning—that I knew a good deal of Latin, for instance—or I said that I was a handsome man, what should you say I was?" "A liar, sir!" was the too ready response.

ly, we find that persons accustomed to regular walking exercises rarely need to complain of "a torpid liver." And then, beyond all this, the more complete inflation of the lungs due to walking occasions a more perfect supply of gaseous food. The actual gain of oxygen, and the increased dispersion of carbonic acid, are very nearly doubled by the exercise.

Moreover, seeing that walking is physical exertion in the open air, it secures an important advantage over all forms of indoor exercises. One can imagine what must be the effect produced by increased respirations in a vitiated atmosphere. Even in one's own room the impurities of the air are considerable; but within the confines of a gymnasium, containing emanations from a score or more athletes, the impurities must be enormously increased.

Under such circumstances, instead of doubling the amount of oxygen inhaled we would take in more carbonic acid, breathing a second-hand air again and again. On the contrary, by taking our exercise out of doors, the expired and foul air is carried off by the atmosphere instead of re-entering our lungs and poisoning the blood.

PLANNING UNITY OF RACES.

China Would Amalgamate Manchus and the Chinese.

With the arrival at Peking of Yuan-shihkai an unusual series of deliberations with regard to the condition of the empire began recently. The Empress has assembled the most influential advisers of the imperial family.

As the Government fears that the Chinese are endeavoring to overthrow the Manchus, and as the recent devices adopted to remove the distinction between Chinese and Manchus have failed, the throne contemplates the amalgamation of the two races.

With this end in view, it recently asked for suggestions as to how this would be possible, and a scheme based on the replies is now ready for promulgation. The main points are:

1. The disbandment of the Manchurian troops, the abolition of their pensions and the placing of their officers in the regular army.
2. The daughters of upper-class Chinamen are to be eligible for marriage into the imperial family. This promises a future Chino-Manchu Emperor.
3. Chinese females shall no longer be permitted to bind their feet. This will remove the difference in appearance between them and the Manchurian women.

4. Manchus are to be required to take surnames, like Chinamen.

The Government hopes that in a decade all racial distinctions will be wiped out.

The recent comet was the subject of anxious discussion at the council, and the court is disturbed because it is universally believed in China that comets presage revolution.

The Empress Dowager is failing rapidly. Her Majesty has had two apoplectic strokes within the last two years, and her strength is visibly lessening.

She, however, contemplates widespread changes in the metropolitan government, and proposes to change the grand secretariat, which has been destitute of power since the time of the Ming dynasty, into a modern Cabinet, and rescue the throne from promiscuous advisers.

THE MAN WHO FAILED.

He failed to pass in school, he failed to hold a job in later days; He failed to win the girl he loved; He failed to gain a word of praise; He failed to show that he possessed Such brains as they must have who But he never failed to answer "Yes" When he was asked to have a drink.

EXPLANATORY.

"Tomatoes were formerly known as 'love apples,' probably because they are soft and easily mashed."

"The manly insisted that I should go on ahead to the little hotel at the Lac Noir and send up guides to assist him and to recover the body of Major Sport."

"There was no guide at the hotel, and just as I was about to start, for Zermatt Infeld stumbled into the hotel more dead than alive. I left him in good hands and went on to Zermatt. A party of guides returned immediately, and Major Sport's body was recovered."

Her Infeld is now in a Zermatt hospital in a critical condition. Both legs must be amputated in order to save his life.

Dr. Helbing has recovered from the effects of his terrible experience.

PRINCE FOR SALE.

Any Pretty Girl or Widow With $2,000,000 Can Have Him.

A genuine German Prince, son of a ruling Prince, is in the market for marriage with an American girl, says The New York World. He has placed himself, his title, his fortune and his position in the social world unreservedly in the hands of the widow of a prominent Government official.

Disclaiming any idea of being a marriage broker, this widow, nevertheless, has written to former Immigration Inspector Marcus Braun, suggesting that if he will find the girl, she will furnish the Prince, and there will be a lot of money in it for both of them.

Mr. Braun, who says he is busy with other things and is happily married besides, has no time to look for a suitable Prince's consort, and so has turned the proposition over to The World. The Prince is said to have a large fortune, but he insists that his American wife shall bring him $2,000,000. He would like to have her young and pretty, but he will not object to a widow, if she is suitable otherwise. She may be of humble birth, if she has the money.

The Prince is a trifle elderly, fifty-eight admittedly, but this might not weigh as an objection. He is reported to be pretty tall, but whether he is red headed or bald-headed, whether he squints or has false teeth, or the gout, or foolish notions, is left to the imagination.

Mr. Braun returned last week from a three months' tour of the Pacific Coast and when he dropped into the Cafe Boulevard, on Second avenue, New York, where he holds many political conferences, he was handed a letter from Vienna. The envelope was addressed:

"High-born Mr. Marcus Braun, President of the Austro-Hungarian Immigration Commission, in New York, America, Cafe Boulevard."

Inside was the following letter: "High-born Sir—I take the liberty to approach you with the following proposition: I have on hand the son of a German Prince, his father was a ruling Prince, fifty-eight years old, so far unmarried, pretty tall, with 40,000,000 crowns, who wants to get married."

"The requirements of the Prince are: A pretty girl or young widow with at least 5,000,000 gulden, who may be also of humble birth."

"If you could find a suitable candidate we could earn an immense sum of money because I am in direct connection. I am absolutely not a marriage broker, but, on the contrary, the widow of a high Government official, and my social connections bring me into contact with the highest families."

"Expecting your kind reply to this proposition, I beg to remain, yours very truly,

"Sofie Shottanek."

"Imperial and Royal Provincial Governor's Councilor's Widow."

"Vienna, Eighteenth District, Wahringer Strasse, No. 94."

At the close of a wedding-breakfast a gentleman noted for his blunders rose to his feet, causing keen anxiety to all who knew him. "Ladies and gentlemen," he cried, genially, "I drink to the health of the bridegroom! May he see many days like this!"

NEWS BY MAIL ABOUT JOHN BULL AND HIS PEOPLE.

Occurrences in the Land That Rejoice Supreme in the Commercial World.

The splendid crimson velvet and gold robes worn by the King and Queen at their coronation and presented by King Edward to the Tower of London, are now on exhibition there.

After working on one farm for seventy years, Thomas Anderson, of Wark, Northumberland, who could neither read nor write, and had never seen a train, has just died, aged ninety-four.

Burglars who broke into Honor Oak Postoffice, kept by a tradeswoman, and stole a number of postal orders, tied towels round their feet in order to deaden the sound.

Asked whether convicts handcuffed to police escorts travel in trains along with other passengers, Mr. Gladstone replied that the governors of prisons have instructions to apply beforehand for reserved compartments, but this is obviously not always possible.

One of the attractions at a Unionist fete at Wimborne St. Giles (Dorset) was the deciding of a challenge issued by a butcher to members of the trade to cut a sheep into ten joints in one minute. The joints were afterwards presented as consolation prizes to participants in a singing competition.

For £110.00 the London County Council has resolved to sell to the Salvation Army the freehold of some premises in Queen Victoria street, from which the amount receivable as ground rent is just over £2,000. By applying the purchase money to cancel stock the interest saved would be £3,000—an annual saving to the ratepayers of £2,000.

A memorandum issued by the War Office says that in Ireland twenty special contingent battalions of Militia of twenty-eight existing will be maintained, and in Great Britain eighty-seven of ninety-six. The remainder will be absorbed if they consent. Both third and fourth battalions will have a chance of being used as units in war, as well as supply drafts.

The traffic receipts on the tramways owned and worked by the London County Council for the week ended the 15th ult., amounted to £32,159, against £25,982 in the corresponding week of the previous year. The receipts from the Council's steamboats during the same week amounted to £905, against £272 in the corresponding week of last year.

A romance attaches to the wedding which has just taken place at Great Harkesley, Essex, between Charles Johnson, aged seventy-one and Mrs. Jane Pitts, a widow, aged seventy-four. The aged couple became acquainted through the woman safely piloting the bridegroom (whose eyesight is defective) across a crowded street at Colchester. The kindly attention led to the winning of a husband.

The Treasury appeared to prosecute in a case at Brentford last week, in which Edward Nash, a grocer, was charged with having obtained 4,283 eggs and hundreds of chickens by false pretences. It is stated that Scotland Yard had received hundred of complaints from all parts of the country. Nash had, it is alleged, obtained produce by advertisements representing that he wanted weekly supplies for a large shop.

The Bishop of St. Albans the other day reopened the old parish church of West Thurrock, Essex, which has been restored at a cost of £1,000. During the restoration work it was found that the walls of the church had been repaired at some distant date with stone coffins which had been broken up for the purpose. A complete stone coffin was found underneath the floor, and its age has been estimated by eminent archaeologists at over a thousand years.

TRADITIONS OF THE PAST

WHITE MEN WORK FOR BLACKS IN THE TRANSVAAL.

Native With Four Wives Now Pays Only Tax Imposed on Man with Two.

Many extraordinary facts regarding the position of the natives in the Transvaal are given in a series of reports just issued by the Transvaal Land Owners' Association.

The reports are made by special commissioners sent out by the association. In one, the writer says:

"It has become quite a common practice for white men to plow land for natives. The latter pay the former so much per acre.

"A decided advance is noticeable among the natives as regards their method of cultivation. In former years most of their land was tilled by women, who used the hoe, practically their only implement of agriculture, whereas at present it is quite common to see the men cultivating with plows drawn by either oxen or donkeys."

Another of the commissioners writes: "The rapid strides the natives are making toward civilization and the eagerness they display in endeavoring to have of late become very marked. I regret to have to say it, but it appears to me that the native children, as regards education, are comparatively advancing more rapidly than the children of the poorer whites in the outlying districts."

"I find that on most of the studs visited a large number of boys are away at work. In fact, in some studs I found only the women and old men, all the younger men being away," writes another commissioner.

"From conversation with the natives they all state their willingness to work, but, as formerly stated in my report, not underground. They also strongly object to being recruited, as they, without exception, all state that they have been cheated by labor agents to such an extent that they prefer to go and look for work by themselves, as then they will know exactly what work they will have to do, and what the remuneration will be."

Dealing with the native hut tax, the same writer says: "I note that the Government no longer charges a native anything more than $10 extra

FOR THE SECOND WIFE.

"By this I mean that a native with four wives pays the same as a native with two. Until recently this, of course, was different. He had to pay for every wife above one."

With regard to agriculture, it is pointed out that the first sowing of the winter crop of Kafir corn has been destroyed by locusts, which necessitate a late second sowing. Unfortunately, a number of farmers of the Bijvoer class have been unable to purchase a second supply of seed.

Owing to immunity from horse sickness by inoculation, mules are increasing, and are now generally used for transport purposes, replacing donkeys, which were largely used after the war.

This season the game generally has increased. This is especially the case with koodoo, steinbuck, pheasant and guinea fowl.

Wild dogs are increasing, and complaints are constantly being made, more particularly from natives, of losses of goats and sheep killed by these animals.

MUST TELL THE TRUTH

LITTLE MACHINES THAT INVARIABLY DETECT FALSEHOOD.

Harvard Psychologist Has Invention That Will Revolutionize Court Procedure.

Professor Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard University has just crowned the achievements of a life devoted to psychological research by the invention of two little machines to record the emotions and reveal the secrets of the human heart.

"Truth compelling machines" is what one savant called them.

What they may accomplish in the criminal world can scarcely be appreciated at the present time, but the claim is made that Professor Munsterberg has reduced a knowledge of the truth to an exact science, and that a few years hence no innocent person will languish in jail and no guilty person will cheat the scales of justice.

These machines will revolutionize the method of court procedure all over the world. The prying cross-examinations of prosecuting attorneys and defending counsel will be

RELICS OF THE PAST.

More certain than any Nemesis, the culprit will, by the record of his own emotions, accuse himself.

The simplest of these machines is called the automatograph and consists merely of a wooden sling suspended from the ceiling, and upon this the arm of the person examined is rested. A pencil is grasped lightly in the fingers, the point of the pencil just reaching a smooth sheet of paper, which records the involuntary writings of the suspect. It has been learned that these muscles constantly twitch under the stress of any passing emotion, and tests made upon different people have disclosed the fact that the same general outline is made by any person under the stress of the same emotion.

Another instrument, much more delicate in construction, is the pneumograph, which records the normal breathing and any variation caused by an emotional suggestion. The underlying principles of this machine are carried on by electrical action, which admits of the recording being done in another room far removed from the suspect.

Every breath writes its own history, and the thoughts of the mind are easily uncovered by

REFERENCE TO THE CHART.

Perhaps the most delicate of these instruments is the sphygmograph, which is attached to the wrist and records the action of the heart beats. Of the three kinds of emotion, that of the heart is the most sensitive and the least influenced by the will. For this very reason it is the surest test. The record of its halts, jumps and rapid beating is the most significant of all.

With all these instruments attached at once to the same person and a definite charted knowledge of every emotion at hand, all that will be necessary when examining a suspect is to compare the involuntary records he has made under examination to the records of an innocent man under similar examination, and the variations in the charts will show up the guilty person with absolute certainty.

GHOSTS WALK AT MID-DAY

MOONLIGHT IS NOT ALTOGETHER ESSENTIAL TO SPECTRES.

Apparitions Are a Winter Subject, and Do Not Belong to Hot Sum- mer Nights.

There is a little village in Cornwall, near to the spot where the infamous Tregagle once worked his wicked will, which has a ghost only seen in summer time. This takes the form of a white rabbit, a pretty creature with soft coat and pink eyes, which gambles in the long, sweet grass outside the churchyard wall. Many have seen it as they pass, but none of the villagers ever stop to watch it. For it has a strange and un-rabbit-like habit of following the passer-by, says Pearson's Weekly.

Once, on a brilliant moonlit August night, a postman found the rabbit at his heels. He walked faster and faster, but still the rabbit followed. At last, in blind fright, he turned and struck at the creature, with all his might with his heavy walking-stick. He felt the stick strike the little creature, but instead of hearing it the cudgel was splintered, while the rabbit lopped on as if nothing had happened.

There is another story connected with this rabbit. One evening a stranger to the village passed and saw the rabbit and thought nothing of it until the villagers at the inn told him of its curious attributes. He jeered and vowed if anyone would lend him a gun that he would go and shoot it. Some told him it was foolish, others said he would not dare, but one gave him a gun.

DARTMOOR INVADED BY PIXIES.

He loaded it and walked whistling away through the white moonlight.

A long time passed, he did not return, the men grew anxious, and went to look for him. Beside the churchyard wall they found him, dead. One barrel of the gun was discharged. Next evening the rabbit was there, as usual, gambolling in the long grass.

A little farther north, on the high firs of Dartmoor, live the pixies, fairy-like elves, who show themselves principally upon summer evenings. A farmer who had been cutting turf on the moor not far from Mary Tavy was coming home about nine o'clock on a July evening, when suddenly, in a "clitter" of granite boulders, he saw a couple of score, of tiny forms apparently dancing and playing together.

Though badly frightened, he was so interested, that he approached softly. But before he got very near one must have seen him. They were sharp, little cries, and suddenly he was enveloped in thick mist—so thick that he could see nothing more, and was forced to stumble blindly back towards his path, barking his shins upon the rocks. After a little the fog cleared, but all sign of the pixies was gone.

Scotland's moors and deer forests are full of the romance of fairies, witches, and other supernatural beings, and these by no means confine their activities to winter-time or to night. The fairies, in fact, keep strictly at home during winter, and only show themselves above ground on warm, summer nights.

HIGHLAND CHIEFTAIN'S GHOST.

There was an old lady living near Cairn who averred that she had more than once seen "the little green woman." This personage is apparently half-fairy, half-human, for she has a curious habit of milking the wild red hinds.

Then, there is another ghost who haunts a boulder in the River Tilt. A genuine ghost his, for it takes the form of a Highland chieftain of old times, and may be seen in the gloaming of a summer evening sitting there gloomy and motionless on the rock in the middle of the stream. The rock is only uncovered when the water is low, and the story goes that the chieftain himself used to hold his court there, and whenever he day reopened the old parish church of West Thurrock, Essex, which has been restored at a cost of £1,000. During the restoration work it was found that the walls of the church had been repaired at some distant date with stone coffins which had been broken up for the purpose. A complete stone coffin was found underneath the floor, and its age has been estimated by eminent archaeologists at over a thousand years.

The United Services Cadet Corps at Eton College has received a 12 in. d. l. gun, which formed part of the Lady Meux Battery, and did service in the South African war. The boys of the corps took possession of the gun at Windsor railway station, and dragged it through the town to the college at St. Mark's. The college warden, the Rev. F. W. Tracey, also presented the college with a crest flag bearing the lion of St. Mark in black on a yellow ground.

LUNCH IN THE CLOUDS.

Italian Aristocrats Eat on Swiss Mountains.

"Alpine" lunch and dinner parties above the clouds are the latest fashionable craze in Switzerland.

A rendezvous is given at an Alpine hotel, which is generally reached by funicular carriage or on foot, and if the weather is fine the function becomes an al fresco affair in the midst of magnificent mountain scenery.

Prince Pie of Savoy recently gave an "Alpine" lunch in honor of Prince and Princess Nicola of Greece at the Bernina Hospice, 7,575 feet high, overlooking St. Moritz. Among the fashionable guests present were the Duke and Duchess de Terranova, Prince and Princess de Trubia, Countess Berristori, Countess Costa and Viscount Bingham.

In the afternoon the guests collected flowers on the mountains or spent the time wandering in the forests.

Many similar functions have been held this summer in the higher Alpine resorts. Last week Mr. and Mrs. H. Murray, of Chicago, entertained a party of friends on the top of the Brevent, 8,285 feet above Chamoni, each guest receiving a bunch of edelweiss as a souvenir. Alpine parties have also been given this season on the Pilatus, Rochers de Naye, Brienzler Rothall and Gernegg.

All these mountains have hotels or restaurants on their summits, but owing to the fact that everything has to be carried up from the valley by the funicular railway or porters, Alpine lunches are rather expensive affairs.

VICTIMS OF MINIC WARFARE.

Austrian Manoeuvres Marked by Many Prostrations.

Much excitement has been caused in Lower Austria by reports that during the present army manoeuvres a large number of men have been prostrated, and that numerous cases have ended fatally.

During a forced march in the mountains in great heat at the end of last week, in Carinthia, two regiments of the line, one militia regiment and a rifle battalion, had several hundred men on the sick list. They were mostly recruits. Seven are said to have died of heart disease. In a march over Radlberg, a Bosnian soldier, who has not yet been discovered, fired a live cartridge, killing a lieutenant on the spot.

From Wiener Neustadt three cases of death are reported, and 200 men are sick. It is feared that the men who report themselves sick are accused of malingering and threatened with punishment. The officers in some cases refused to listen to the recommendations of the doctors and allow a rest.

Although it is officially stated that nothing is known of deaths among the men, there is every reason to believe that the main facts are correct. The official statement has by no means diminished the prevalent excitement.

"Freddy, you shouldn't laugh out loud in the schoolroom," exclaimed the teacher. "I didn't mean to do it," apologized Freddy. "I was smiling, when all of a sudden the smile busted."

VALET AATAKCKD ENGLISHMAN.

The Servant Was Enraged at Being Reprimanded.

An affair which in some respects recalls the famous Dr. Herbert case occurred recently at Bois-le-Roi, near Fontainebleau, France.

A wealthy Englishman, named Vivian Worth, was attacked and severely injured by his valet. In the small hours a laborer returning from Fontainebleau to Bois-le-Roi saw a well-dressed man lying in the road at the hamlet of Broiles. He was unconscious, his clothes were soaked with blood, and his features were badly cut. The man carried the inanimate sufferer to the village chemist, who recognized him as Vivian Worth, a rich young Englishman, who had been living for the last few months in a villa at Broiles, which he had rented for the season. After an hour's hard work the chemist managed to restore consciousness.

As soon as he could speak, Mr. Worth stated that he had a valet in his service with whom he was not altogether satisfied, and on Thursday he had to reprimand him. While returning home the same night from the local cafe, a man, who he is convinced was the valet, sprang from behind a tree and beat him about the head with a heavy stick until he fell unconscious. Mr. Worth thinks there was another man with the valet, but of this he is not certain. The local police have been informed and are making exhaustive enquiries. The valet is missing, and a hue and cry has been raised.

Mr. Worth's condition was serious. His head is badly injured. He is quite disfigured, and fears are entertained that he will lose the sight of both eyes. It is stated that the first investigations by the police have been fruitful in surprises, and that the affair is likely to assume much larger proportions than was at first supposed.

CURIOUS BURGLAR TOOLS.

Up-to-date Crackmen Now Use Rats and Dogs.

Rats and dogs must now be included among the assistants of the expert burglar. The animals are used by the burglar to ascertain if the coast is clear, the mode of operation being somewhat as follows:

"The crackman" may have fixed upon certain premises where he suspects there are burglary alarms. He accordingly forces open a small window and puts through two or three rats, brought to the scene in a basket. Accompanying him also is a ratting terrier, and this animal he also puts through the window. If there is a burglary alarm anywhere about, the barking of the dog after the rats will set it in motion, and the burglar leaves the dog and the rats to their fate. Should there be no ringing of bells he enters.

"Another common dodge is for the burglar to send a telegram to a suburban housewife as follows: 'Come at once to — Hospital. Husband very ill.' Should the telegram effect its purpose the burglar sets to work.

"Oysters are sometimes aids to a felony. After the husband has gone a man will call at a house with two or three dozen oysters displayed on a tray. These, he will declare, have been ordered by the master of the house, and while they are being gathered up by the servant or wife a second rogue will enter the house by the back door, pick up all he can, and hide. In a little while the oysterman will return with the statement that he has mistaken the house. The oysters will be brought back to him, and while they are being placed one by one on his tray his confederate finishes his work and makes his escape."

WISDOM.

Altho a mule
Be sweet and kind,
Just walk in front,
And not behind.

Uganda Railway.

To those who are acquainted with it, The Uganda Railway seems to be a fit subject to be dealt with in comic opera. Named after a colony through which it does not run, starting from a terminus placed as far as possible from the port it serves, running for miles through natural game-preserves, with the result that trains are frequently held up by wild animals, every mile of the road is always a fruitful field for adventure, and nearly every mile has had some humorous tale attached to it.

In the early days, when the road had been open only a little while and wild animals had not learned the fear of man, life on the line was interesting and often exciting, says a writer in the Colonizer. In August, 1905, the traffic manager at Mombasa received from the Lilao station-master at Simba a telegram marked "urgent."

"Lion is on platform. Please instruct guard and driver to proceed carefully and without signal in yard. Guard to advise passengers not to get out here, and be careful when coming into booking-office."

This advice appeared to be superfluous. However, one bold sportsman did get out, and by ascending a tree, managed to shoot a lion and a lioness within a few minutes. He also wounded another lion, the one which had been waiting on the platform. This lion, after being wounded, disappeared and could not be found; so the sportsman went along the siding to look for him. He found him suddenly, but owing to his own swiftness, in getting on a blow on the jaw after an exciting rough and tumble, he was still there when the lion made for the underbush.

Later in the day the station-master received another message from the same agent. "One African injured again by a lion. Please send cartridges by next train, certain." And later from the same man this:

"Switchman is surrounded by two lions while returning from distant signal, and switchman went on top of telegraph-post near water-tanks. Train to stop there and take him on train and then proceed. Please arrange necessary steps."

But it is not only big game that annoys him, for on a later day he sent this bulletin:

"Rats running about, eating holes in ceiling and biting off switchman's toes. Send rat-traps."

SULTAN'S COMIC OPERA.

Two Fine War Vessels are Rotting at Anchor.

For some time past negotiations have been proceeding between the Turkish Government and the Italian firm of shipbuilders, Messrs. Ansaldo Brothers, with a view to the construction for the Turkish navy of a cruiser of large dimensions, and it is now announced that an irade has been issued authorizing the signing of the contract.

The action of the Italians, supported by their Embassy, in pressing the Porte to indulge in this expenditure is severely criticized.

The Government has no use for first-class cruisers built abroad, and the two fine vessels supplied by Armstrong and Cramp are being allowed to rot at their anchors in the Golden Horn, which they have not quitted since their arrival. Consequently, further additions to the navy would in any case be superfluous.

If previous experience is to be relied on it is feared that the cruiser will be an interminable time in building. For instance, four small vessels—crosses between gunboats and coast defence vessels—which at present disfigure the naval harbor at the Golden Horn are the monument of three years' labor.

They are supposed to be able to travel at the rate of fourteen miles per hour, but naval experts say that it would probably take them three hours to perform that distance, and then only with assistance. As, however, they have never left their moorings, and are not likely to do so, nobody will ever be the wiser in regard to their qualities.

Then, there is another ghost who haunts a boulder in the River Till. A genuine ghost his, for it takes the form of a Highland chieftain of old times, and may be seen in the gloaming of a summer evening sitting there gloomy and motionless on the rock, in the middle of the stream. The rock is only uncovered when the water is low, and the story goes that the chieftain himself used to hold his court there, and whenever he did so used to hang at least one of those brought before him.

In Crete and other islands of the Eastern Mediterranean the peasants are not half so much afraid of venturing abroad at midnight as they are of being alone in the woods at midday. The hot, still, scented noon is the hour of danger, for then the dryads are at liberty to leave their homes in the hearts of ancient trees, and all believe that the human who sets eyes upon one of these beautiful woodland divinities must surely go mad.

Further east, again, Arabia and Egypt have their daylight ghosts. In the peninsula of Sinai strange sounds are heard among the mountains when the sun is at its highest and hottest.

BURNS HUSBAND THEN SHOOT'S HIM

Terrible Agony Caused by Sulphuric Acid Bath.

A tragic and dramatic story was unfolded the other day at Indre Assise, France, when Mme. Bassage, a young woman, was charged with the murder of her husband, Dr. Bassage.

For ten years of their wedded life the couple had lived humbly and happily together, but when they removed to another part of the district, and prosperity began to shine upon her husband, Mme. Bassage's attitude completely changed, and she became unreasonably jealous of him.

On July 23 last, while he was in bed, she came to the bedside and burned him slightly with a boiling liquid.

A violent scene followed, and finally the doctor seized a revolver, whereupon Mme. Bassage rushed out of the house and returned with a quantity of sulphuric acid, which she threw at her husband, burning him severely. In an agony of torment the victim jumped out of bed and ran down to the kitchen in search of water.

Mme. Bassage then discharged her revolver at him, and he died in his room. His wife waited for him to be ever in bed, and when he passed her dressing-room she shed again, and her husband fell dead.

He was about 45 years old, and no justification is said to exist to justify his wife's suspicions of infidelity.

TREASURE HOUSES OF FEZ.

There are Thought to Contain Priceless Treasures.

There is a small but not unimportant class of men who are following events in Morocco with the keenest interest. By these it is hoped that the French occupation of this country will prove to be the prelude to a real uplifting up of Morocco, by which the road to Fez will be made free to the student as well as to the merchant.

At Fez there is a library which is believed to contain innumerable manuscripts of the highest value, together with copies of Greek and Latin classics, which have been lost to European students.

Chief among these latter are said to be the first books of the historian Tacitus. Ever since the revival of learning in Europe scholars have looked forward to the time when these treasures will be brought to the light of day.

But even should the hopes that are now entertained of a French advance in Morocco be borne out, and the library at Fez be placed within reach of the deliver after historical and classical lore, there is too great a possibility that the passage of time and the neglect which has undoubtedly been their portion may have caused irreparable damage to the documents.

THE BEST FLOUR. DAFOE'S NONESUCH DAFOE'S MANITOBA PATENT

By numerous tests by the best Bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best Flours in the market.

When buying Flour ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill, thereby producing Bran and Shorts that you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles at great expense, and usually, when it reaches you, of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home store just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy Flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sell you an inferior Flour for more money than you can purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Death of A. C. Clarke.

After an illness of several weeks,
Mr. Archie C. Clarke, passed away on Friday last. For some weeks Mr.
Clarke had been suffering with Typhoid fever, but was not ill enough to go to bed, and he did not think he was seriously ill. A week before his death however he was obliged to take to his bed and became rapidly worse, until there was no hope of recovery.
Mr. Clarke was well known and respected by everyone, having lived in Napanee practically all his life. A number of years ago he was an employee of this paper and on severing his connection with the newspaper business he commenced the photograph business for which he had considerable aptitude, and made a success of this venture. Deceased had purchased a property on John street and was preparing to erect a gallery of his own next spring. The funeral took place on Sunday from his late residence to the Eastern cemetery.
Notwithstanding the inclement weather a large number of the members of the I. O. O. F. turned out to pay their last respects to the remains of their deceased brother. Mr. Clarke was an active member of Napanee Lodge No. 86, also a Mason. Besides his widow, a family of three, two boys and a girl are left to mourn the untimely demise of husband and father.

Death of Wilfrid Pringle.

Wilfred Ira Pringle, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Pringle of 129 South Secvieve avenue, Oak Park, Illinois, died Tuesday mornin of last week of acute appendicitis after a most agonizing illness of six days. The nature of the disease was not learned until after his death, the symptoms being so peculiar as to prevent a correct diagnosis. He was thirteen years old, an exceedingly bright and winsome boy, the high esteem in which he was held by old and young alike being manifest at the funeral, which was held at the house on Thursday morning. The large attendance, drawn from the wide circle of the friends of the family, was deeply moved with a sense of personal loss and with an outpouring of sympathy for the bereaved parents and brothers. The Sunday school class which Wilfrid attended at the Second Congregational church was present in a body, and there was a great wealth of floral tributes such as is seldom seen at the death of one so young. Rev. Dr. Sydney Strong, his former pastor, who knew and loved the boy in days gone by, had charge of the service, and spoke tenderly and appreciately of his brief life and manly character. Madame Janotta and Miss Jessie Caddle sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "My Salvation Army.

The Harvest Festival sale of goods etc. held at the Salvation Army Barracks on Tuesday night was a great success. An enthusiastic crowd gathered for the occasion. The sale was preceded by an open air and a short Thanksgiving service in which everyone joined heartily and "praised God from whom all blessings flow."
The large stock of goods and garden produce was then disposed of by the genial Dad Davy and Sergt. Major Hicks, they knew how to deliver the goods, everyone being well satisfied especially the purchasers. The Officers and Soldiers of the Corps wishes to thank the public for the kind and generous way they contributed towards making the Harvest Festival of 1907 a success. "From victory unto victory His Army shall He lead."

Camden Parish.

Harvest Thanksgiving Services were held at St Anthony's church, Yarker, on Sunday last. The churches were most tastefully decorated - the services well attended - offerings for W. and O. Fund liberal, $18.00. The service at St Luke's Camden East, was also well attended considering the down pour of rain. The Rev. Elwin Radcliffe, B. C. L., preached his farewell sermons at all the churches prior to leaving for Brandon, Manitoba, where he goes as Curate to the Rev. Rural Dean de Pencier, M. A. The Rev. Charles de Pencier, M. A., Rector of Wellington, has been offered the Parish by the Bishop of Ontario. Rev. G. Waller, of Japan, will conduct Divine Services, October 6th, at St. Luke's, Camden East, at 11 a.m.; Yarker at 3 p.m., and Newburgh at 7 p.m.

Tells How To Mix It.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take. This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time. Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

Doxsee & Go's. Millinery Openings.

Oh how beautiful from one end of the millinery department to the other. One could hear this exclamation from the mouths of many ladies, and, even if ladies are naturally inclined to be enraptured over the products of the artistic milliners, in this case the unanimous verdict that the millinery display was beautiful, was not at all exaggerated. The showing is equal to any of the New York millinery displays, although perhaps not so extensive. It would almost be impossible to enumerate the pretty hats shown, but the description of a few of them will be of interest. The varieties, a large mushroom shape of whiteguilted silk trimmed with guinea wings and black velvet; a pink hat with high crown covered plain with silk and faced with val lace, the only trimming being a mink band around the crown fastened on each side with a bunch of dahlias; Black velvet hat, mushroom shape, high crown faced with black moire, silk draped around the crown with a black ostrich foxtail plume and fastened at right side with a choice of velvet. The childrens hats are very pretty particularly the little dutch bonnets in white felt. There is also a fine display of flowers, wings and feathers in all the latest shades, tan, purples and green.

Saturday the Steamer Reindeer brought in for the Collier Bros evaporator a full load of apples. There were some eighty barrels and two hundred bags.

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its Restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the Stomach, etc.

Charles Mackenzie caught a yellow or golden throated humming bird on Thursday, Sept. 26th. This bird credited with having its habitat not north of the latitude of the Carolines. A yellow throated one was seen here about three years ago and a number appear to have visited this vicinity and nested here. The common humming bird found here is the Ruby throated species. The yellow throated is distinguished by having a white breast and yellow throat.

Kingston, Sept. 20. George Tomlinson, electrician, was found dead in his bed this morning. On examination it was discovered that a vein had burst in his leg. The deceased was a native of Leeds, England, and having served his apprenticeship as an electrician, he was sent to Japan, Russia and China to instal electrical works in these countries. He came to this country eleven years ago, and settled in Kingston. For eight years he has been in business for himself. He was married to Miss Clancy, of Napanee, and leaves her and three children. Mr. Tomlinson was a member of the Foresters, Oddfellows and Sons of England.

Learn Dress-Making By Mail
in your spare time at home, or Take a Personal Course at School

To enable all to learn, we teach on cash or instalment plan. We also teach a personal class at school once a month. Class commencing last Tuesday of each month. These lessons teach how to cut, fit and put together any garment from the plainest shirt waist suit, to the most elaborate dress. The whole family can learn from one course. We have taught over seven thousand dress-making, and guarantee to give five hundred dollars to any one that cannot learn between the age of 14 and 40. You cannot learn dress-making as thorough as this course teaches if you work in shops for years. Beware of imitations as we employ no one outside the school. This is the only experienced Dress Cutting School in Canada and excelled by none in any other country. Write at once for particulars, as we have cut our rate one third for a short time. Address:—

E. LOYST.

The popularity of the weekly drawings at Wonderland is evidently on the increase as was shown by the large crowd which packed the building to overflowing on Wednesday evening. Master Harold Vanaistine held the lucky number which carried off the handsome chair. Miss Grace Dryden, who did the drawing, received a choice box of chocolates. For full particulars of next week's drawing see ad. on page one.

Worth While.

Whatever adds in even the smallest way to the world's brightness and cheer is worth while. One who says an encouraging word to a disheartened neighbor, gives a look of love to a lonely one or speaks a sentence which may become strength, guidance and comfort to another does something worth while. It is always worth while to live nobly, victoriously, struggling to do right, showing the world even the smallest fragments of divine beauty.

His New Vocation.

"John's home from college?"
"Yes."
"What's he goin' to do now?"
"Well, 'twixt you an' me I think he's just about decided to loaf around an' be one o' these here incomprehensible geniuses!"

Horse Sense.

"Now, he's got what I really call horse sense."
"How, for instance?"
"He never bets on one."

A Philosopher.

Frances Willard once wrote to a friend who had just lost a daughter: "Dear Sister Anna, how much richer are you than I! Here I sit alone without a child to die, while you are mother to an angel."

The Hat Scale.

A fifty dollar hat is a conceit.
A thirty dollar hat is a confection.
A two dollar hat is a sin and a shame and a perfect justification for going home to mother.
